British Ruler Holds Conference With Sir James Craig, Unionist Leader.

IRISH FACTIONS IN MEETING

Unionists and Sinn Feiners Receive Ovations at Dublin Gathering.

BULLETIN

London—A truce in Ireland, effective Monday, is expected to be announced Saturday, it was learned on reliable authority here Friday night.

This development in the Irish situation occurred simultaneously with the issuance of a statement in the Sinn Fein official bulletin that Eamonn De Valera had informed the Sinn Fein-Unionist conference in Dublin Friday of the terms of his reply to Premier Lloyd George's invitation to the London conference.

The London conference, proposed by Lloyd George was to bring the two Irish factions into session with the British government, providing a tentative working agreement could be reached in Dublin.

London—King George appears to have suddenly assumed the role of principal mediator in the present Irish negotiations.

The king received Sir James Craig, premier of the Ulster parliament, at Buckingham palace Friday.

Following by only a day his conference with Jan. Smuts, premier of South Africa and intermediary in the negotiations, George's action was regarded as deeply significant.

Unconfirmed reports were immediately circulated that De Valera, president of the "Irish republic" would be the next important figure to be invited to Buckingham palace.

The king, it was pointed out, really took the first step toward bringing about the present negotiations when, in opening the Ulster parliament recently, he pleaded for peace in Ireland, urging the people of the island to "for give and forget."

It is known that George has been constantly informed of the progress of the negotiations and, following Thursday's conference with Smuts, it was announced that the proposed London conference in which De Valera, Unionist and Sinn Fein representatives will meet Premier Lloyd George would be held at Buckingham palace.

Dublin—The conference of Sinn Fein and Unionist leaders, designed to reach an agreement preliminary to the London conference with Premier Lloyd George, was resumed here Friday.

Great crowds gathered outside the building where the conference was in progress and cheered the arrival of each of the conferees.

Eamonn De Valera, president of the "Irish republic," and Earl Middleton, leader of the Unionists in southern Ireland, received tremendous ovations.

After two hours deliberation the conference adjourned until 4 p. m. It was understood that a reply was being drafted to Premier Lloyd George's invitation to the London conference.

The new styles, however, extend only slightly below the knees. The general effect is said to be almost as daring as the present street attire.

Peggy Joyce Is Granted $1,300 Month Alimony

Thrice Married Show Girl Is Given $27,000 to Pay Her Attorneys.

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Peggy Joyce, follies show girl, was granted $1,350 a month temporary alimony by Judge Joseph Sabath Friday.

The court also allowed the pretty blonde $27,500 attorneys' fees and $12,500 to rather evidence in her fight against the suit for divorce brought by her millionaire husband, J. Stanley Joyce.

The judge drastically cut the amounts requested by Peggy to "maintain herself in the life of luxury" to which she claimed she had been accustomed through Joyce's liberality.

Her request for $100,000 attorneys' fees and expenses for the suit, was cut in half. She asked for $10,000 a month alimony.

The court, however, ruled that Peggy would not have to pawn her jewels in order to pay her living expenses and said that if she found the amount was not sufficient to meet costs, she would entertain a motion to increase the amount.

For the purpose of reaching his decision, Judge Sabath said that the marriage of Peggy and Joyce was legal.

Joyce had contended that Peggy had not been granted her divorce from Sherburne Hopkins yet when he married her.

Although Joyce declared Peggy had a large private fortune and was able to support herself, the court said:

"The wife in an action of this kind should not be compelled to exhaust her own estate, although the income which she receives from her property may be deducted from the amount which the husband should pay."

The court allowed the petition of Joyce's attorneys for an appeal and gave them 40 days to file it.

Peggy's money will be tied up for that length of time, at least.

CHARGE WIFE FORCED TO EAT ILL HUSBAND TO EAT

By United Press Leased Wire
Cleveland, Ohio—Dan Kaber while living ill in bed, was forced to eat the food prepared for him by Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, according to testimony given Friday by Miss Emma Wagner, former maid at the Kabers home.

Miss Wagner was the first state witness called to the stand when the trial of the woman accused of the murder of her wealthy husband was resumed Friday.

The witness recounted instances where Mrs. Kaber forcibly fed her husband strawberries and candy which apparently made him violently ill.

Miss Wagner was followed on the stand by Miss Crystal Benner, a nurse who attended Kaber for three weeks, about two months before his murder.

The nurse told substantially the same story as Miss Wagner, recounting seeing Kaber ill on several occasions after being given food by Mrs. Kaber.

Harding Asks For More Speed

MINER LEADERS SENT TO JAIL BY KANSAS COURT

Alexander Howat and Aide Punished for Calling Strike of Miners.

By United Press Leased Wire
Columbus, Kans.—Alexander Howat, president of District 14, United Mine Workers, and August Dorchy, vice president, Friday were sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 each by District Judge Boss for violating the Kansas industrial court law by calling a local strike over a wage controversy.

Howat and Dorchy were convicted by a jury last week.

Immediately after he was sentenced in a courtroom crowded with miners who refrained from demonstration, Howat answering the judge, declared he was within his right in calling the Mackey strike, for which he was prosecuted, and that the industrial court law was unfair.

A meeting of all southern Kansas miners has been called for late Friday at the park here and Howat and Jake Sheppard, the mine leaders' attorney, will make addresses against the court law, Howat said. Mine union leaders declared that about 2,500 miners will attend.

Prior to sentence, motion of Howat's and Dorchy's attorneys for a new trial was overruled. After sentence they were released on $4,000 bond each, pending their appeal to the supreme court.

TARIFF PROTECTS MOVIE SALARIES

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—America's high salary movie stars and the lesser lights of filmdom have been placed under the "protective wing" of the Republican tariff bill, now being considered in the house.

As a result the salaries of those whose pictures appear on the American screen will not have to be slashed to enable American companies to compete with a brisk low cost European competition that has suddenly sprung up.

The tariff bill provides protection for the American "movies" by requiring a tax on all foreign films of thirty per cent ad valorem.

Not only that but the Europeans cannot expect to reap big profits by sending "daring" films to the United States, as the bill makes the secretary of the treasury a censor of all reels sent to this country.

The tariff rate carried in the bill, it was learned, is the result of the unexpected success of a few German films that recently have been displayed throughout the country.

HARDING APPOINTEE RAPPED BY MENTORS

By United Press Leased Wire
Des Moines, Ia.—A strenuous attempt to put the National Educational convention on record as criticizing President Harding's appointment of J. J. Tigert as United States commissioner of education, failed Friday.

J. W. Hathaway of Florida, proposed a resolution directly aimed at the Tigert appointment, which would have recommended appointment to high educational offices of only those "qualified by training and experience, without regard to geography and politics."

Other leaders pleaded for the teachers to be "diplomatic" and "not take a slap at those who have the power to help us," and the resolution was voted down.

Resolutions adopted recommended well educated and professionally trained teachers in every class room; increased training facilities; tenure laws; a single salary system; rural schools as good as urban; appointments to high educational offices by laymen boards of education; endorsement of the Stirling-Towner bill and protest against submergence of a department of education; all teachers join the N. Bathhouses are being built with the tax on motion pictures, sporting goods, face powder, cosmetics and other beautifiers.

NO CHANGE FOR SOLDIERS' AID LAW THIS YEAR

Secretary Mellon's Letter Has Definitely Killed Plans for Legislation.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—Soldier bonus legislation is dead at least so far as this session of Congress is concerned. The executive branch of the government has warned Congress that such a measure at this time would strain the nation's finances and add to the difficulties of the country's business situation.

President Harding is more or less committed to a soldier bonus. He is on record to leaders of the American Legion advising them "not to worry about the bonus." But he could not give it his approval at this time.

Secretary Mellon of the treasury department, who has just written the senate a letter arguing against the passage of a bonus bill, had the full support of Mr. Harding before he communicated with congress.

Mr. Harding was unable to run counter to the advice given him by the treasury department and for the present at least the legislation will be deferred.

Even without Secretary Mellon's letter there was no assurance that the soldier bonus bill would pass both houses. The plan was to rush it through the senate of course and it may yet go through that body for moral effect, but it is doubtful whether house leaders would have let it through at this time.

Mr. Mellon's letter makes it clear, however, for administration forces in congress to answer the demands of constituents for action on the bonus. They can make Mr. Mellon responsible and argue that as a financier and business man he ought to know what will and will not hurt the business situation.

Still a Live Question
But the interesting fact is that the soldier bonus question is by no means disposed of either by Mr. Mellon's letter or the attitude which congress may assume. The movement has grown rapidly and while conservative minds inside the American legion have doubted the wisdom of a bonus, the rank and file have been enthusiastically in favor of it and the Harding administration knows that sooner or later, either just before the congressional elections of 1922 or the presidential election of 1924 a soldier bonus bill must be passed to prevent the soldier bloc from voting in a body against the Republicans next time.

How to Get the Money?
Nine out of ten political prophets hereabouts admit soldier bonus legislation is inevitable. The only question is when can it be passed consistent with the condition of the nation's finances.

To Demand Action On Tax Bills

President Loses Patience With Dilatory Tactics of Lawmakers.

PREPARES NEW MESSAGE
Chief Expected to State His Policy With Reference to Soldier Aid.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—President Harding's patience with congress is about exhausted. He has decided to abandon his original policy of "hands off" in an effort to end what he considers the dilatory tactics on Capitol hill which have run his legislative program into almost hopeless confusion.

This is the explanation of Harding's sudden visit to the capitol and his insistence to senators that congress shelve the soldier bonus bill and get down to work on the tariff and taxation measures for which the special session was called.

He will formally recommend this in a message soon, perhaps Friday.

In adopting the leadership tactics used by Roosevelt and Wilson, Harding reverses his original policy which was to allow congress to run its own affairs.

He has waited for four months carefully avoiding the least show of executive interference. His ire was finally aroused by the eagerness with which congress took up the bonus legislation in the face of the protests of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other government financial experts.

Republican senate leaders Friday were making plans to carry out to effect the program Harding outlined to them at his visit to the capitol Thursday. Nothing formal will be done until the president's message has been received by the senate.

The message, it is expected, will include:

A recommendation that the soldier bonus legislation be deferred for the present, with detailed reasons why Harding thinks this course wise and a promise to the former service men that the administration is still committed to the principle of adjusted compensation for soldiers and will make good his promise at a more favorable time.

Speed Up Tariff Bill
A suggestion that the senate "expedite" the tariff and tax legislation which Harding will point out is the real business for which the session was called, by taking a series of three day recesses. Harding takes the position that by thus limiting the session's work to its primary task, performance of these tasks will be hastened rather than delayed.

A recognition of the position of the "agricultural bloc" in the senate, whose members are "standing pat" for enactment of emergency relief legislation for farmers before they consent to any recess. Harding is expected to advise immediate attention to such legislation.

BLAMES U. S. WARSHIP FOR TROUBLE IN OIL FIELDS
By United Press Leased Wire
Mexico City—Americans and Mexicans have clashed in the Zacamitla district, south of Tampico, according to reports received here Friday.

No details were given in the advices and the Mexican government and American embassy were not informed as to whether there had been any casualties. Feeling was said to be running high throughout the oil region.

Mexico City—The situation in the Tampico oil fields already critical as the result of unemployment, was regarded in semi-official circles Friday as having been aggravated by the presence of the American gunboat Sacramento off that port.

Trouble may be precipitated by the presence of the warship, it was pointed out. If so any force the Sacramento could land would be insufficient to restore order.

Actual trouble in the oil districts is considered imminent. The railway has been cut between Tampico and San Luis Potosi by a wreck. This has had the double result of decreasing Tampico's food supply and completely cutting off shipment of fuel oil to Mexico City and other industrial centers.

Oil shipments have fallen off 78 per cent since the new Mexican export tax became effective, according to unofficial estimates.

FALSE MODESTY IN SCHOOLS IS RAPPED

Educator Decries Tendency to Dodge Sex Matters in School Work.

By United Press Leased Wire. Des Moines, Ia.—British false modesty from the schoolroom. Benjamin Gruening, director of physical education in Washington, D. C. schools, told the National Education association here Friday.

"The overly modest English teacher, who is embarrassed when she is compelled to mention in the classroom anything relating to sex, is responsible for much of the sex consciousness in high school pupils," Gruening said. "Every teacher of English literature should feel free to discuss human passions, human relations and human ideals without embarrassment."

Evolution of the mind was discussed before the convention by R. T. Harter, Minneapolis.

"The mind is an inheritance," he said, "its quality is the same as 2,000 years ago, but its equipment is now far superior."

"The college student of today has the same mentality as the student of 20 years ago but he is a better man because his high school and college technical training have been better," Professor C. H. Williams, University of Missouri, stated.

A pan-American conference on education was suggested by Colonel Eugenio Savia, special commissioner of education for the Cuban government.

"Germany has tried to infect South American nations with 'kultur' in education as well as in other lines," Savia said.

"It has not succeeded but it points to an ever present danger."

FISHES FOR MUSKIES; CATCHES HUGE TURTLE

No muskellunge are being caught in Tomahawk and Glimore lake this season according to E. W. Shannon, who with Mrs. Shannon returned Thursday from a ten days fishing trip to that part of the state. Previous years a string of fish was never complete without several "muskies," but this year none has been caught and fishermen cannot account for their absence.

Mr. Shannon made one catch that nearly pulled him out of the boat. After an exciting fight with what he supposed was a deep sea monster he discovered he had hooked a snapping turtle that weighed close to 20 pounds. It was with difficulty he kept it from cutting his line or breaking his pole. He managed to get it to shore, where it was killed with an ax.

HIS EARS FOLD UP!

Meet "Pop-Eye," as the British have dubbed him. He has just arrived in London from South Africa, to make his home in the London zoo. He's a maholi galago—whatever that is—and the most curious thing about him is that he can fold up his huge ears, just like you close your hand!

60,000 EMPLOYEES ARE RELEASED BY UNCLE SAM

Albert J. Kegel of Washington, D. C., formerly pressman of the Appleton Post, accompanied by Mrs. Kegel, is visiting relatives and friends in Appleton and Neenah after an absence of four years. He said Washington is not effected by the business depression as much as other eastern cities because the greater part of the people are government employees. The number of employees, however, has been greatly reduced since the war, about 60,000 having been released at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. As a result many of the temporary buildings erected for the use of government clerks during the war are vacant and are being torn down. The temperature for the last month has averaged over 100 degrees and at times thermometers have registered 113 degrees in the shade.

Charles Jansen of Niagara, visited friends here Friday.

ROAD EMPLOYEES LEAVE JOBS BECAUSE OF HEAT

Road contractors appreciate more than anyone else the breaking up of the intense heat which prevailed for the last three weeks. Had it continued much longer they would have been without men. Twenty men of the Appleton Construction Co. which is paving the Chilton-Hilbert road quit because of the heat, and Grunke Bros. who are paving the asylum road also had several men desert them. Ten men abandoned their posts with the first symptoms of sunstroke, but some of them have since returned to work.

NO ROMANCE AFTER FORTIETH BIRTHDAY

Wed Chicago Couple Run Marital Ship on Rocks After Brief Voyage.

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Chicago—Mrs. Mathilda Schubert, at 74, is suing her husband of two months for divorce.

"No person past 40 should wed," say both.

Years ago the two were sweethearts in the little Westphalian village where as a girl Mathilda reigned as belle. Louis Schubert paid ardent court. But Mathilda refused him for another.

Boy and girl then drifted apart. The village, too, faded from their memory. Years passed before fate stepped in again.

Mrs. Schubert, after burying her husband, was in Chicago visiting friends. Downstairs in the house where she stayed lived a man, alone. He had buried one wife, and divorced a second.

The man was Louis Schubert.

By chance, after a month, they met. She was hanging clothes in the back yard. He was tinkering on a repair job.

Recognition was mutual. In a few days they were married.

Romance Blasted.

All went well for two days and then—
"Louis became irritable," Mrs. Schubert charged. "He wanted the forks put in just the same place he had been putting them. He grew intolerable."

With the romance blasted, Schubert went back to his solitary life once more. I found him flipping flapjacks for his evening meal. Between times he stopped to pat a mixture of rising dough that was about ready for the oven.

"Don't talk to me of women," he said. "I'm through with them for good. A man of my age should know better. Women cling too much—they're too weak. Love—ha, that's a myth for children only."

Schubert said he didn't know where his bride had gone. "She's a million miles from me," he said.

But she wasn't. She was living overhead.

Wife's Story.

She was rocking in a little chair and looking down into the deserted street when I entered.

"We made a mistake—Louis and I," she said. "The weeks that have passed have given me time for reflection."

"I have waited fifty years to learn one simple truth. Love is like a house of cards. With beauty to soothe the winds, the house stands. When beauty goes, the dream house falls."

"And neither Louis nor I had beauty. We found that love could not exist on childhood memories alone."

AGED MAN IS VICTOR IN 7 YEAR BATTLE

"I feared I was going to be an invalid. For 7 years I battled stomach trouble, doctoring constantly and tried everything without result. Then I found Kozak. Today, I'm a well man!"

Thus spoke H. Barton, a retired citizen of 222 Madison street, Stevens Point, Wis., Friday. He continued: "I could not hold food on my stomach. I suffered fainting and dizzy spells. My appetite became miserable. Although I always felt listless and run-down, I couldn't sleep nights. After everything had failed I took Kozak. In Kozak, I found the most wonderful remedy in the world. Today, I am a perfectly well man."

A Word to the Wise

"In March I was called to the bedside of my sister in Brewton, Alabama. She was given up to die and was almost dead. Talked in a whisper. Doctors said nothing but an operation would save her and she was too weak for that. Her color was yellow as a pumpkin and she was filled with gas. That day I heard of May's Wonderful Remedy and went and got a bottle for her. In three weeks she was able to be about and walked a mile to church. I am praising your medicine to everyone. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—Druggists everywhere. adv.

Appleton In Early Days

F. HEINEMAN
I came to this city in 1886 from Manitowoc on account of ill health. I contracted malaria during my service in the Civil war and I came here to get away from the lake shore. I opened up a drug store in 1887 and next year I was elected justice of the peace and with the exception of about four years, I have held that office ever since.

I have made several trips in my time, going as far as Spokane, Wash.

and quite thoroughly over the south and I have made up my mind that Appleton is about as nice a place as any of them.

The city is quite changed from what it was when I came here. Most of the banks have new presidents and officers. H. J. Freeman is one of the men whom I recall just now who was connected with a bank then and is still with it. Where the Elk club now stands a large hotel called the Waverly house and it was known all over the state. People used to come here for the weekend and stay at that hotel.

Conditions in general were very much better then. There were fewer labor unions and strikes, consequently there was less dissatisfaction and extravagance. People used to get along with much less. Now every hard girl has to wear diamonds and there is hardly a working man who does not own or intend to own a car.

In those good times people were more honest about paying their bills and meeting obligations.

Appleton Men Are Becoming Matinee Hounds

Appleton men are becoming matinee hounds. Visits to the movie houses the last few weeks showed that a large proportion of the afternoon audiences were men. Theatre managers said that the number of men attending movies in the afternoon has shown a decided increase in the last few months.

"Men who do not care to attend the baseball games attend the matinees," said Henry Gribler, manager of the Appleton theatre. "These people prefer to sit quietly in a cool theatre and watch their favorite actor in the auto races of the screen than to go to baseball on a hot day, sit on the bleachers and get all heated up rooting for their side and getting into arguments."

Western drama seems to be a general favorite with the men and boys while the girls and women prefer society drama and sentimental pictures. Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Ray continue to draw large crowds while Vera Gordon in the "Greatest Love," which showed in the Majestic theatre recently, proved her popularity.

It was learned at the Majestic theatre that next to Vera Gordon, Constance Talmadge was the most popular actress. Patrons of the Appleton theatre continually ask for Harry Carey, according to Manager Gribler while Gladys Walton has a large group of loyal followers. Women and children patronize the Appleton theatre matinees more than men do.

Wettengel, Brooks and Weifenbach Offer Resignations. Will Name New Board.

After three years of service as chairman of the city park board, Fred F. Wettengel resigned the office Thursday. His resignation was accompanied by those of Philip Weifenbach and Dr. E. H. Brooks, the other two members of the board.

In explaining his reason for resigning, Mr. Wettengel said that the formation of the city plan commission gave him added duties as he was a member of the commission by virtue of his office as chairman of the park board. He said that this work would be more than he could assume as his own business activities occupy most of his time.

Being informed of Mr. Wettengel's intention to resign, Dr. Brooks and Mr. Weifenbach agreed to resign with him, believing it better that Mayor Hawes should appoint an entire new board. The resignations were given to the city clerk Thursday afternoon.

COUNCIL'S IMPORTANT SESSION

Wednesday evening's meeting of the city council was a very active and most resultful one. It was undoubtedly the most important meeting held in many months, and we believe that the mayor and council should be commended and congratulated upon the achievements of that session.

First of all in importance is the action taken in authorizing proposals for two new bridges to be built across the Fox river. No one can doubt but what the bridge problem is one that needs prompt attention, and little criticism can be made of the council's action in recommending that two bridges be built. It is a far-sighted movement and a project, when realized, that will take care of Appleton's bridge problems for years to come.

The mayor's action in appointing a city planning commission is also to be commended. It's in keeping with the spirit of progressive Appleton. The duties of this newly appointed body will at once become apparent as this city realizes its further opportunities for development, improvement and beautification through a practical city plan, which will undoubtedly be adopted by this new commission.

RELIEF FOR DISABLED SOLDIERS

The whole country will applaud President Harding for his expressed determination to bring about at the earliest possible moment passage by the senate of the veterans' bureau bill as an emergency measure. This bill was introduced in the house by Representative Sweet of Ohio and is designed to end the abuses of soldier relief due to haphazard legislation and uncoordinated agencies.

The treatment by the United States of its ailing and disabled soldiers is a national disgrace. Moreover it has continued for such a length of time as to be intolerable, and to magnify this disgrace to a degree where it is nothing short of a public scandal. The pathetic plight of thousands of ex-service men inadequately cared for because of the lack of government hospital facilities, or who are awaiting relief delayed by red tape, has been before congress for months. It has been the subject of protest and denunciation from one end of the country to the other. The American legion and other agencies working with it have done everything in their power to have these conditions remedied but without success.

It is a state of affairs which is deeply humiliating to the nation, and it is incomprehensible that, following so splendid an exhibition of patriotic spirit and sacrifice as was evidenced in the great struggle in France, those in responsible authority, including congress, should lapse into a state of indifference and apathy toward an injustice of this kind. The fact that public opinion has not made itself react more strongly upon congress to compel justice to distressed and disabled soldiers is no credit to the people themselves.

The only conclusion the soldier can consistently draw is that the nation has no sincere appreciation of his sacrifices, that its moral attitude throughout the war was shallow and that its only real concern was to get back to the process of money making and selfish enjoyment at the earliest possible moment. It is up to us as a government and a people to correct this impression and to wipe out this state of neglect at the earliest possible moment. The president and General Pershing are thoroughly aroused, and the country is not in any frame of mind to put up with further delay in congress.

THE TREATY

Congress having passed the peace resolution, there is now a state of technical peace with Germany. But technical peace and actual peace are two different things. Next there must be a treaty with Germany, confirming the peace and stating in terms the basis of the future relationship between the two countries. In the making of this treaty congress has nothing to do. It is exclusively President Harding's business, although before the treaty becomes operative it must be ratified by the senate.

The question that the president must decide is whether to join the allies in the treaty of Versailles, with modifications, or make a separate treaty with Germany without reference to the relations between the allies and Germany. The decision is of vital importance. The news from Washington that the president, and Secretaries Hughes and Hoover, his chief advisers in foreign affairs, are trying to find a way to join in the Versailles treaty is encouraging.

Undoubtedly this is what the great majority of Americans would like to have done. To adopt the alternative course will amount to a betrayal of the nations with which we fought side by side in the war. We can argue that it will not, but the fact remains that in certain great fundamentals the causes for which the United States and the allies fought were identical and the same obligations to civilization which impelled us to join our fortunes with theirs demand that we preserve this association in the making of peace which is to guarantee to the world the results for which the war was fought and victory achieved.

THE ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY

It seems certain that the Anglo-Japanese alliance is to be renewed, but with important modifications. Although the precise nature of these modifications has not been made public, there is little doubt that they will protect the British government against the contingency of being involved with the United States in case of war between Japan and this country.

This insurance has been insisted upon by the premiers of the British dominions at the present conference in London. These representatives of colonies which have attained practically the federal status of the states of this republic, went to the conference with the firm determination to have the British treaty with Japan revised in such a manner as to relieve them of all obligations to support Japan in any controversy or coalition it might have with the United States. They were frank and outspoken in their purpose and there is no question but what their views were a deciding factor, in the event of English hesitation, in compelling a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty in this form.

The prophets of calamity who have been talking about the probability of a war between America and Japan with Great Britain and her dominions on the side of the Japanese, have been undone by the events at the imperial conference. What the British government was for a time unable to see was perfectly plain to the colonies, whose perspicacity in international affairs is perhaps clearer than that of the home government, involved as it always has been in so many political rivalries and alliances. It is perfectly obvious, however, to a disinterested student of world politics and commerce that British interests in the Far east would never outweigh the value of friendly and peaceful relationship with the United States.

Nothing at this time could be more potentially upsetting to the peace of the world than an alliance between Great Britain and Japan which required the former to go to the assistance of the latter in case of war with this country. Nothing in the long run could be so disastrous to British interests as to be required to fulfill such an obligation. The new Anglo-Japanese proposal is additional proof of returning sanity in international relationships, and of the fact that hereafter they are to rest upon justice and right understanding rather than upon intrigue and mischievous purpose.

The altogether remarkable statement issued by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador at Washington, in which he argued never at any time had the Anglo-Japanese alliance been a menace to the United States and had no bearings upon the relations or possibilities of trouble between Japan and United States, while temporarily reassuring nevertheless failed to explain the real necessity of this treaty, or its real justification. The mere fact that the British colonies had construed the agreement as a potential liability against peace with the United States should be enough to satisfy America as to its potentialities.

THE HARDSHIPS OF VACATION

The annual autumn fall of typhoid among returning vacationists is constantly diminishing as vacationists become more generally enlightened as to the perils of untested drinking water, flies in the dining room, and food-handling human "carriers" of typhoid bacilli. Then, too, a fairly large proportion of vacationists nowadays are immune to typhoid by reason of the prophylactic bacterin ("anti-typhoid vaccine") administered to millions of young men in war time. So far as the drinking of untested water is concerned—that is, water not approved for drinking purposes by the local health authorities—there are two factors of safety: (1) boiling the water five minutes; (2) dissolving in each quart a halazone tablet (a chlorine-compound for sterilizing drinking water) or one grain of chloride of lime.

A vacationist heading for the wilds or for a camping trip should not fail to include in his equipment a simple first aid outfit—but it is not necessary to carry a trailer or an extra wagon to hold the first aid outfit. A suitable outfit will be described presently. Trouble with most so-called first aid kits is they are cluttered up with mere fillers, for the sake of appearance or maybe somebody's profit.

Tenderfeet frequently overdo the matter of exposure and suffer with sunburn. It is well to subject the skin to very brief exposure—not more than five minutes of direct sunlight three times a day the first day—and gradually increase the periods of exposure by five or ten minutes daily. When going on the water or otherwise exposing the skin for prolonged periods, keep covered with clothing, or coat the exposed skin with cold cream or zinc oxide ointment and a heavy dusting with talcum powder. This is more comfortable as prevention than effective as cure. But there is nothing better for the relief of sunburn than freshly made cold cream or zinc oxide ointment, sprinkled over with plain talcum.

No vacationist should permit his or her mind to be troubled by such obsolete vagaries as the green apple myth or the notion that cucumbers contain anything injurious or poisonous or that any animal is more likely to be rabid in the "dog days" or that a bite is more likely to convey the infection of rabies if the weather is hot or the animal is known to be of any ugly disposition.

What should be done in the case of a bite by an animal, when the question of rabies arises? If the animal can be identified and confined under the observation of a veterinarian for two weeks, of course at the owner's expense, then the veterinarian can give a pretty positive opinion whether the animal is ill. If his opinion is that the animal is not ill, there is absolutely nothing to be feared. If he is not sure, then, and then only, the animal may be killed, and head at once sent packed in salt to the pathologist designated by the local health authorities, and the pathologist's examination will determine whether the animal had rabies. If the report is positive, then, and then only, the person bitten should be given the anti-rabies treatment, which is now available everywhere for administration at home, by the family doctor. The first aid treatment of bites will be described later.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Congenital Cataract

Please tell me the cause, possibility of removal, best age for operation, and the results to be anticipated from operation for congenital cataracts. The child is three years old, can see enough to go about easily, but cannot distinguish persons. (C. B. L.)

ANSWER—Cause of congenital cataract, unknown. Ten to twelve years ago generally considered favorable time for operation, though successful operation for congenital cataract is sometimes done in infancy. If the eyes are otherwise well formed there is excellent chance for restoring good vision.

The Days of Real Sport

Is there any danger in letting my two-year-old boy sit in the mud or get his shoes and feet saturated with mud while enjoying his favorite pastime, playing in the mud? My fond neighbors declare he will get cold in his stomach by so doing. (Mrs. R. T. S.)

ANSWER—If he were my boy, I'd give him the privilege of wading in up to his neck if he enjoyed it.

The Clothes Pin

What is your opinion of the common, everyday wash or clothes pin as a germ carrier? Women hang out clothes and carry pins in the mouth. The pins are often given to children to play with on the floor. (E. V. W.)

ANSWER—Sunlight and air exposure will take care of any germs that try to eke out an existence on clothes pins.

Our Need Of Diplomats

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C.—For a great many years it has been publicly and privately deplored that the United States, one of the great world powers, is the only one which has not a real diplomatic service. Its ministers and ambassadors to the other nations of the globe are almost invariably men appointed from private life to represent the United States abroad, often as a reward for special service to their political party or large contributions to the campaign fund.

Haskin

It has been the custom for some members of the party out of power to talk of establishing a diplomatic service on a par with the military and naval services, with men trained to diplomacy taking the highest ranks as their training and fitness for these posts of great responsibility are shown.

Under present conditions, which have obtained for many years, it is impossible for a poor man, or a man of moderate means—no matter what his qualifications—to accept the appointment as Ambassador at London, Paris, or elsewhere. The establishment of such a service, the dignity of which requires is far out of reach of the ordinary pocketbook, and the salary of $17,500 paid to these ambassadors is scarcely a drop in the bucket in making up the ambassadorial budget.

Recently, through congressional acceptance of the gift of J. P. Morgan, the United States acquired an Embassy in London. It was one of Mr. Morgan's houses. The salary allowed to the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James would not be nearly sufficient to pay the rent alone for this house.

Diplomacy as a Profession
England and France do not look to men who have made themselves valuable to political parties and who have the large means, if nothing else, to pay for accepting the honor of diplomatic appointments. There young men are trained as diplomats just as they are trained as naval officers or military experts. They have before them the certainty that if they have brains and ability enough, they will go on up the ladder and gain the honor and emoluments of the finest diplomatic posts.

In Washington nearly every embassy and legation is the nation of the world represented here are owned by these governments. In the cases of the more important nations, these establishments are in keeping with the dignity and position of their countries, and their representatives here are not forced to pay rental for them. The salaries paid to foreign representatives in Washington, particularly of the big powers, are so large that they can live on them easily, and their governments, as a rule, also provide a large fund for them for the entertainment of the American officials and the other members of the diplomatic corps here.

In times of peace men have been appointed to diplomatic posts whose behavior has gone far toward making the United States a joke in the eyes of the people of the countries where they have been sent. A great deal of publicity was given a few years ago to an official investigation into the behavior of the American envoy to a small but very punctilious nation. Among other things it was testified that this gentleman brought shame and humiliation upon his country and made himself ridiculous by making a practice of sitting, in the cool of the evening, with his bare feet protruding from one of the windows of the American legation. It was necessary to appoint this man with another who made a practice of wearing orthodox footwear until bedtime.

He Couldn't Speak English

At one time a man was appointed to represent the United States at one of the Latin American countries who proved little more than a source of amusement to the officials of the foreign office of that capital, and to the diplomats of other nations stationed there. This man had acquired considerable wealth but entirely lacked education. When it was finally born in upon the proper officials in Washington that this man not only could not speak Spanish or French—the language of diplomacy—but that he was continually mangling his own tongue, he was relieved and his place was filled by a man who at least had some slight familiarity with English grammar.

The position and influence of one American envoy was continually impaired by the actions of his wife. This man himself was a diplomat of real ability, but his prestige was hurt when his wife engaged in a hair-raising match with a milliner on one of the principal streets of the capital where he was stationed. On another occasion, at a formal dinner party, some trivial incident upset this same woman, whereupon she left the table and was seen no more that night by her guests.

Often the State Department is at fault in making it impossible for America to be properly represented abroad. It is history that one man was sent abroad as American Minister whose popular nickname among those who knew him was "Nutmusk." On another occasion a man was sent to a European country whose very name hurt him. In the language of the streets of the nation to which he was sent it had an objectionable meaning. The State Department was aware of this through protests from the country itself, but insisted on this man being accepted.

There are incidents innumerable whereby, through the operation of the system in vogue, the United States has been made a joke because of its failure to have a service of trained diplomats. Often, it is true, the men who represent this nation abroad acquit themselves admirably and bring nothing but credit upon themselves and their country, but there is far less assurance of this in the American Diplomatic Corps than in that of any comparable nation.

The importance of excellent diplomatic representation cannot be exaggerated. Troubles of the most serious nature may be averted by a trained, able man, where another might founder along to such an extent that his nation would be embroiled in serious difficulties as a result. As a notable example, it is beyond imagination to calculate the tremendous good done to the United States by Benjamin Franklin, as American envoy to France, who says this country was a fledgling nation, urgently in need of the friendship and regard of the older and more powerful countries, Franklin single-handedly won this esteem for his government.

Cost of a Missing Word

A single instance will serve to show the great importance of diplomatic work of the highest character. In the negotiations over the Panama Canal which resulted in the agreement between England and the United States regarding ship tolls, known as the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, a single word gave rise later to all the troubles which have filled the news-papers.

The treaty as it was drawn by Lord Pauncefote, representing Great Britain, and Secretary of State Hay, provided that "all nations" should pay tolls at the same rate. Later when it was planned to let American ships pass through the Canal at less cost than foreign vessels, England protested vigorously, calling attention to the wording of the treaty to which the United States had subscribed. The State Department pointed out that this wording meant all nations other than the United States. The English said that if this had been meant, surely the treaty would have set it forth and this word "other" would have been included in the treaty. The best legal minds of the United States, in and out of the State Department, finally were forced to accept the British contention as correct, through the omission of a single word when the treaty was made.

A. About six ounces avoirdupois of radium has been isolated and put into commercial use.

Q. Does an auto tire weigh more after it is pumped up? J. Y.

A. Air has weight, and a tire's weight increases according to the amount of air pumped into it.

Q. How long has Tammany Hall been an influence in politics? F. W. W.

A. Such figures are hard to compile, since various countries base them differently. Q. What is a tontine agreement? T. F.

A. This is an arrangement by which a group of persons share certain benefits or monies on such terms that in the event of the death or default of one of the members, these shares are divided among the remaining members, until one person has the whole amount or advantage. In most modern insurance companies the whole goes to those remaining in the group on the expiration of the tontine period.

Q. Why is the famous American flag that inspired the Star Spangled Banner? D. C. B.

A. The original Stars and Stripes which inspired the writing of the Star Spangled Banner is at present in the old National Museum in Washington, D. C.

Q. A claims there is only an ocean swell. B claims there is a land swell also. Which is right? J. L.

A. There is a long smooth swell occurring along coasts where the ocean bed is not far below the surface for a long distance from the land. This is known as a land swell, and though frequently noted in fair weather it is due to deep water disturbances from high winds.

Q. Who was known as the Scourge of England? A. D.

A. Hammer and Scourge of England.

Q. Where do the Yahoos come from? L. R. C.

A. The Yahoos are fictitious characters in Swift's Gulliver's Travels. They are slaves of the Houynhnms or horsefolk, and possess the form of both man and horse. They are a satire on the human race.

Q. Will a 50-mile gale uproot trees and damage houses? C. R.

A. The Weather Bureau says that winds of 40 to 50 miles per hour should not seriously damage well-built houses or uproot trees having proper root system, particularly if devoid of foliage.

Q. How did our death rate in the World War compare with the high-way death rate in the United States? O. G. B.

A. At a conference on highway traffic regulation held at Yale University recently, it was stated that in the period of our participation in the World War our war losses numbered 48,000 deaths, while during the same period there were 91,000 persons killed on the highways of the United States, 25,000 of whom were school children. It will be noted that in 19 months the highway fatalities nearly doubled those of our forces in the greatest war in history.

Use Fruit Juices

Delicious drinks for hot summer days can be made from canned fruit juices.

Bring to boiling point and seal. Using ice tea as a basis all sorts of combinations can be mixed.

Menu for Tomorrow
BREAKFAST — Sliced bananas, cooked cereal, cinnamon toast, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Spaghetti with tomatoes, nut bread, tea.
DINNER — Club steak, French fried potatoes, canned corn, asparagus salad, orange strawberries, sponge cake, coffee.

My Own Recipes
The season for home-grown berries and asparagus is comparatively short, so while the season is in one can't use them too often. If asparagus must be bought in the market it does not pay to can it for winter use. Vegetables for canning should be gathered and taken care of before they wilt.

Spaghetti with Tomatoes
One cup spaghetti, boiling water, 4 slices bacon, 1 small onion, 1/2 cup canned tomatoes, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, salt and pepper.
Cook spaghetti in boiling water to barely cover for 10 minutes. Cut bacon in narrow strips, nunch onion and cook bacon and onion together. Add tomatoes and spaghetti. Turn into a buttered baking dish, season with a very little salt and pepper, sprinkle with cheese and brown in the oven.

Adventures of the Twins

Oliver Roberts Barton

Old Man Flood Escapes

By Oliver Roberts Barton

The Magic Green Shooter carried Nancy and Nick right up to the star of the weatherman, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, a great big place with plenty of room on it for everything.

They walked along and pretty soon they came to two houses. One was on one side of the road and the other house was across from it on the other side of the road.

So the twins did what anyone else would have done, walked up to one of them and knocked. If that wasn't the right one, at least there was no harm in asking, was there?

A voice inside said, "Come in!" and Nick gave the door a push, wide open.

Before Nancy could move an eyelash, something dashed out of the door past her with a great rushing noise, almost knocking her down. Nick grabbed the door and pulled it shut again with all his might, but not before some words reached his ears. A lot of voices were shouting at once

"Oh, there goes Old Man Flood!" said one.

"Jack Frost, why didn't you watch your turn and get out too?" said another.

"Get out, old Sizzly Dry-Weather!" retorted Jack Frost. "Why didn't you go yourself?"

"Too soon, Jack, too soon!" said old Sizzly Dry-Weather. "Just you wait 'til summer!"

"Gracious!" exclaimed Nick mopping his face with his hanky. "Now we've done it, Nancy! We got the wrong house. This must be the place the Nuisance Fairies live that the Fairy Queen told us about. I guess that's Mr. Sprinkle-Blow's house across the road."

Just then the door of the other house opened and out came an odd little fairyman carrying a large umbrella.

Confessions of a Bride

No Escape from Eroticism

A certain paralysis of feeling followed my reconciliation with Bob. I was utterly tired of emotions, my own, Bob's, Ann's, Martha's, everybody's. I was weary of loving, and of be-her own soul, I went down to her of ace. We would lunch together.

On her desk was a magnificent bunch of white lilacs, pure but heavy with a subtle sentiment. The blossoms and Martha's first sentence

ing loved, and of talking about love. I needed some hours of physical activity, or purely intellectual and unemotional occupation. Hoping to remain in that mood until my soul was again at peace, and hoping to get Martha into it, for the good of tween Van and Evan?" Martha nodded, regarded the flowers thoughtfully, and admitted: "I suppose the bouquet does indicate that Arthur Mansfield understands!"

"Makes me think of funeral flowers!" Thus impulsively I indiscreetly voiced my astonishment. I was disappointed in Arthur Mansfield. Why need he send any comfort to Martha? If he was an ideal man as I wanted to believe, how could he demonstrate "sympathy" to a married woman? He had no right to do so!

"I do not understand men at all!" I sighed. "Neither do I!" Martha agreed. "Evan cheated me and all his other loves. Van cheats all the women he flatters. Would Arthur Mansfield prove to be finer than they—if put to the test?"

"Dunno!" I answered flippantly. "I'm sick and tired of men as food for thought! Let's leave it at that!" But I think Martha would have continued to talk about Mansfield had we not been interrupted.

Entered a handsome gentleman of fifty years. His hair was white and wavy, his skin a little too pink. He was plainly a successful capitalist and optimist, one of Daddy Lorimer's kind.

I retreated before his imposing personality. I took up "Miss Lulu Bett," which Martha had thrown on a table in a corner of the room. Glancing up casually, I could not fail to notice that the gentleman had pulled his chair too close to Martha's.

"Goodness me! A pretty woman in business sometimes has to endure a lot!" thought I. "No escaping criticism! A woman must face it and fight it."

TWO YEAR TERM ON BLACKMAIL CHARGE

Man Who Attempted to Extort Money From Banker Gets Stiff Sentence.

Madison, Wis.—H. D. Rivers, who is charged, tried to blackmail E. S. Johnson, cashier of the First National bank, Baraboo, for $65,000 recently, was sentenced to two years at Waupun at hard labor by Judge E. Ray Stevens in Circuit court here.

Rivers was a stranger in Baraboo when he is said to have attempted to force the payment of the money. Mr. Johnson received a letter demanding that he leave a package with $65,000 in it at a hotel desk. He was threatened with the death penalty should he refuse to comply.

The letter stated that an old man who knew nothing of the plot would call for the package and that he had been paid 50 cents to run the errand. A package containing a cigar box stuffed to give it weight was left at the desk, and John Burke, Northwestern railroad detective, watched for a claimer.

The old man appeared, procured the package and walked down the railroad tracks. Anxious to examine the contents he began to unwrap the package and he was arrested by Burke who followed him from the hotel. He later admitted that he was alone in the scheme.

Rivers is said to be about 35 years old. He traveled from place to place and is believed to have stayed at any one place for but a short time.

SHERIFF REPLIES TO VICE CHARGES

Waukesha, Wis.—In answer to charges made by members of the Milwaukee Federation of Church Women that vice in the lake regions of Waukesha county is being permitted to go on undisturbed, Sheriff Keebler declared on Thursday that no complaints have been filed with him.

He asserted that if the district attorney desires a cleanup, he will make it.

According to the sheriff, the only matter which has been brought to his attention, was the noise at several lakes. Residents complain that the noise continues after midnight, he said. I informed them that I am powerless to stop noise at summer resorts, he continued.

Sheriff Keebler declared that if liquor is being sold, it is up to the federal authorities to investigate.

MERCHANTS TOLD TO USE NEWSPAPER ADS

Eau Claire, Wis.—Merchants attending the summer convention of the Wisconsin Retail Dry Goods association here on Thursday were told to advertise in the newspapers in order to get the proper results, by John L. Meyer, Milwaukee, one of the speakers.

"Advertising, including all the definitions of that word, provided that it is really advertising, at the very least makes it easier to sell goods," said Mr. Meyer. "Sometimes it can carry the whole burden of the sale. You couldn't continue your business without advertising in some form."

"Keep accurate records, and you men will find that you can't beat local newspaper advertising for economy, flexibility, efficiency—results. Most of the other forms of advertising you do or could do, and should do, will not earn their salt without a background of newspaper advertising, on the other hand, they can be doubly and trebly valuable, with such backing."

Mrs. Eric Filen Is Victim of
Freak Bolt—Thilmay Mill
Slightly Damaged.

Kaukauna.—Mrs. Eric Filen was the victim of a freak accident during the storm Thursday afternoon. She was poking in the eavestrough with a stick, trying to clean it of debris, when lightning struck the stick. Mrs. Filen was knocked unconscious, but was quickly revived. The lightning also struck the Thilmay mill, causing considerable damage. The electric transformers and were put out of commission and it was necessary to shut down the mill. Fire started but it was extinguished by the department before much damage was done.

KAUKAUNA SECURES MORE NEW PLAYERS

McDonald and Melchoir Are Released—Pitcher to Play Shortstop.

Kaukauna.—If Kaukauna can't win baseball games, the management at least deserves credit for rustling up new players every week. McDonald and Melchoir were released early in the week and rumor had it that several others were to follow. Van Gogh, who didn't make good at pitching, is still with the team. He has 'em hard and probably will play short stop, for reports are that he is good in that position.

Reik, the well known Milwaukee Red Sox hurler, has been secured for Sunday's game with Menasha. The whole lineup has been materially changed in the hope of getting the team started.

After an enforced rest the Independents are again lined up for a number of good baseball games. It is probable they will play every week until the end of the season. The Independents are going to New London Sunday to play the city team.

Zink will be behind the bat and Regenfuss and Pieshek will do the hurling. Last Sunday Pieshek pitched for a down state team and allowed only two hits and fanned fifteen men. With such a pitching machine in the ranks of the Independents, they don't intend to take defeat from any semi-pro team. It is probable that a number of fans will accompany the team.

MUSKEGO WOMAN GAINS 16 POUNDS

Thinks She'd Be Ungrateful Not To Tell Others of Good Tanlac
Has Done Her

"I feel that I would be showing the spirit of ingratitude not to tell suffering humanity what Tanlac has done for me," said Mrs. Polle Poganski, Muskego, Wis. R. F. D. No. 1, Box 53.

"For six years my stomach was so weak and disordered I had to live on such things as milk toast and eggs. I could scarcely retain these and suffered so from gas and cramping pains I could hardly stand it. There were awful pains around my heart and in my chest and I also had palpitation so bad I almost smothered. I had such dreadful headaches I just had to stay in bed in a dark room for twenty-four hours at the time and was always taking something for constipation. My kidneys also bothered me quite a bit, and I had awful backaches. I was pale and had no energy, and was so nervous I scarcely slept any. Every muscle and bone in my body seemed to ache, and I was so weak I could hardly put one foot in front of the other, and had to stay in bed nearly half the time."

"But Tanlac helped me from the very first. The pains began to leave, my appetite improved and I rested so good at night that I just kept on taking it, until now I have taken six bottles and am a well woman. In fact I haven't an ache or pain anywhere and never felt better in my life. My color is good and I have gained sixteen pounds in weight. I shall never be able to praise Tanlac enough for what it has done for me. I'd spent my last dollar for it rather than be without it."

MAY SHIFT MONEY FROM GENERAL FUND TO CONSTRUCT ROADS

Finance Committee to Survey Finances—Get Legal Opinion From Madison.

The county board may only levy taxes of 2 mills annually for highway and bridge work, according to an opinion given by Deputy Attorney General Ralph M. Hoyt to District Fred V. Heinemann.

It was stated that at its meeting in November, 1920, the Outagamie county board authorized a tax levy of 2 mills for the county and state highways and bridges and in April, 1921, authorized the borrowing of $65,000 from the general fund for use on highways, and providing for repaying the amount to the general fund by a levy on the next tax roll.

According to the attorney general the board could have arranged to borrow the $65,000 from the general fund if there was that much surplus in the fund, but had no authority to add that amount to the tax levy.

A meeting of the finance committee is to be held in the near future to make a careful survey of the county's financial needs to determine if it will be possible to take sufficient money from the general fund to complete very necessary road work in the county. It was pointed out that a large amount of road building material has been delivered on a road in the northern part of the county but work has been delayed because of insufficient funds. It is feared this material will be lost through deterioration unless money is provided to complete the job.

The brickyard rd also is badly in need of repairs but lack of money has made it impossible to tackle the job. If the finance committee decides that the county's finances will permit the shifting of money from the general fund to the road building fund it is quite probable most of the work will be completed this year.

C. A. Pardee, Jr., has submitted to a second operation in the North Chicago hospital at Chicago and his return home will be delayed several days, according to word received here Thursday.

Electric Storm Causes Damage Near Appleton

Heat Wave Is Broken Temporarily by Storm—Power Lines Are Hit.

The heat wave which had held Appleton in its grip for several weeks was broken temporarily by the thunderstorm Thursday afternoon. Official weather forecasters declare the high temperature will be with us again and the storm was only a temporary break.

Reports indicate the rain and wind was widespread, causing considerable damage in other parts of the state.

tended, but not enough to break the stalks. Some hail is reported to have fallen at Kaukauna and in western parts of the county, causing some damage to corn.

It is said that north of Freedom windows were broken on the same side of the buildings in all houses along a half mile stretch. The Freedom Telephone company is reported to have had about a dozen of its poles blown over. A number of trees were blown over at summer resorts on the north shore of Lake Winnebago.

Farmers say the rain arrived just in time to save the oat crop. The fields state. Some trouble was experienced here.

Several interruptions of service were caused by the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company by lightning accompanying the storm. Repair crews were quick to find the sources of trouble, however, and restored service in record time.

The most serious damage was done at Sherman, where two high power and one low transformer were struck by a direct bolt of lightning. One of the transformers was shattered and the others badly damaged. This caused the village and nearby patrons to be without current for about two hours. Connections were made with other circuits to give temporary relief until the transformers can be replaced.

Distribution wires from Appleton to Hortonville, Dale and Neenah were severed by the storm, depriving these places of current, but were repaired in about half an hour. Part of the business section of Appleton deprived of light when the transformer was struck at the rear of the Post Publishing company building had its current restored within an hour.

Some sections of the county hardly were touched by the storm or at least escaped from wind and lightning. The path of the disturbance seemed to be from the north end of the county through Hortonville to Appleton, then south to Neenah and Menasha. The fury of the storm then was carried on a direct line east, passing along the shore of Lake Winnebago to towns east of the lake.

Cornfields on many farms were laid flat by the wind and driving rain, but farmers believe little actual harm was done. They expect the corn to straighten up and grow more sturdily than ever. Some of the grain also was flat-were drying and turning brown, and the kernels were failing to fill. Pasture is expected to revive, solving one of the most serious problems dairy men have had to face for years.

In the town of Greenville many fields of corn were damaged by hail which was accompanied by a heavy gale that leveled crops generally. The storm was especially severe in certain localities, but as far as could be learned did very little damage to buildings.

Heavy property damage was caused at Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Beloit and Madison, according to reports from those towns.

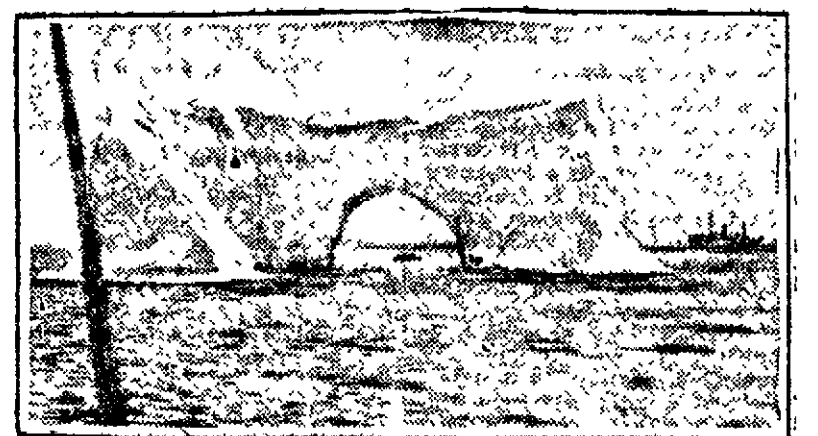

Dr. and Mrs. F. V. Watson and daughter of Antigo, visited with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johns Thursday while on their way home from Madison by automobile.

APPLE TREES ARE HIT BY FIRE BLIGHT

Twigs Affected by Harmful Bacteria Must Be Cut Off, Nyhus Recommends.

Outagamie county's apple crop will be lighter this year due to the prevalence of the disease called fire blight which has been discovered in many orchards. Its progress is slow and if checked in time will have no serious effect on trees.

Explanation of the malady is given by Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank, who says that its presence is known when leaves and young branches begin drooping from the protruding end. Bacteria find their way into the tender growth through the blossoms, or get in beneath the bark or through wounds on the tree. They work downward toward the trunk and if left for a sufficient time will cause whole branches to die and in some cases the entire tree.

Action of the bacteria will cause the fruit to dry off the same as the leaves and branches, although the effect will not be noticeable seriously for several seasons.

This tree disease may be curbed or cured by painstaking treatment. Mr. Nyhus recommends that owners of a few trees get busy as soon as signs of the disease are discovered and cut off the twigs that are drooping with a sharp knife. They are visible and should be snipped off an inch or two below where the germ is at work.

In orchards or larger groups of trees the work of eradicating the fire blight is more difficult. It is Mr. Nyhus' opinion that the best way to handle these trees is to let the germs have their way until fall. Each tree should be gone over then and the affected twigs removed. Each limb must be examined closely however, because the germ usually builds a ring around itself on new wood, then settles down for the winter, beginning its damage in a fresh spot in the spring. Wherever these circles are discovered the branches should be severed.

Knives used in this work should be disinfected in a solution containing 1 per cent of corrosive sublimate. Mr. Nyhus says this is necessary because the germs may be left in fresh spots by the knife if it cuts through a diseased section and then is used on unharmed wood. Use of the disinfectant after each stroke helps to eliminate this trouble.

Big Thistle Crop

The biggest crop of Canada this year ever reported in Fox river valley will soon go to seed and unless they are promptly given attention will do untold damage to land. Many farmers throughout the county cut their thistles while others have ignored them entirely to the annoyance of neighbors.

FINISHES HEALTH WORK WITH PUPILS

Red Cross Report for June Shows Many Cases Handled by Departments.

June was a busy month for Miss Mary Niel Kaukauna public health nurse of the Outagamie Red Cross chapter. She devoted most of her time to completion of examinations of school children before the term closed. The report of Mrs. B. W. Wells county secretary shows that 322 children were inspected and 230 defects discovered.

covered Eight pupils were excluded from school and 203 were referred to physicians for care. Miss Niel also cared for 12 home cases.

Miss Clara VanSlyke, Appleton health nurse cared for 55 home cases during the month making 132 visits. She cared for six patients at clinics and arranged for correction work for three. The nurse also gave a health talk to pupils of the vacation school.

In the home service section 76 men or their families were given some form of assistance. Cooperation of other agencies also was sought in aiding several individuals.

Red Cross health classes continue in session throughout the county and are drawing the interest of many women. Miss Katherine McKinley, instructor finds opportunity to be helpful to many women through consultations with individuals on health matters.

Three representatives of the chapter attended the national conference of social work in Milwaukee, returning with timely and practical ideas for extending Red Cross service to the community.

THURSDAY WAS RECORD DAY AT BATHING BEACHES

More people were in bathing in Lake Winnebago Thursday than was ever known before in the 30 years that people have been going to the beaches. The number in the water during the day and up to midnight was estimated in the thousands. People were lined up in front of the bath houses the greater part of the day waiting their turn to get suits and many of them were disappointed. Crowds from all the cottages also spent a considerable portion of the day in the lake. The water was so warm, according to one of the cottage owners, that it took all the "pep" out of the swimmers.

Look Your Letters Over Before P. O. Gets Them

Wrongly Addressed Mail Is Recalled by Patrons for Correction Every Day.

"Hello. Is this the postoffice?"

"Yes."

"I just dropped a package in the mail. It was supposed to go to Oshkosh but I remember I addressed it to Milwaukee. Won't you please look it up and change the address?"

This is only one example of the troubles Postmaster Gustave Keller finds in the daily routine. Such cases as these are occurring daily. It is quite a common event to have people try to recall letters or parcels after they have been mailed and often they already have been dispatched.

"Cases like these are responsible for much of the criticism of the service," said Mr. Keller. "The post office force usually is blamed for somebody else's mistakes. If people would take a last glance at their mail before depositing it at the postoffice or in the mailbox, much of this could be avoided."

"People make these mistakes large or small because of absentmindedness or force of habit. It becomes almost a necessity for them to review the addresses to see that they are right. A little precaution along this line saves embarrassment, delay and money. Additional expense is caused the government and time is lost unnecessarily. Hardship is prevented less fault is found and everybody is happy if the patrons guard themselves against mistakes."

Mr. Keller relates an instance where a business man mailed a special delivery letter, presumably to Milwaukee. It was an important communication by which a deal was being closed and the addressee sent word back to Appleton that the letter did not arrive. The whole blame was placed upon the postoffice department for negligence, as the letter could not be traced. Several dollars were spent in telephone calls and the sender was placed in an embarrassing position with the Milwaukee man his word was being doubted.

Matters had reached a serious stage when the letter was returned to the sender from the Chicago postoffice with the notation that the addressee could not be located. The Appleton man insisted he addressed the letter correctly, but realized his mistake when the letter came back indicating that it had been directed to Chicago instead of Milwaukee. The sender sheepishly but manfully apologized.

AUTO DRIVER LOSES HEAD AND ALMOST LOSES LIFE

Quick action on the part of several spectators at Oneida-st. railroad crossing Wednesday saved an unidentified driver of a Ford sedan from being run down by a train. Walter Groen was operating the gates and said the driver paid no attention to the ringing of the bell when the gates were being lowered and got on the tracks when one of the gates struck the top of his car. The driver became confused and stopped his car on the main track. Several spectators realizing the danger he was in, ran to his assistance and pushed the car to one side just as the locomotive reached the crossing.

Enlarge Office
The Wisconsin Wire Works is enlarging its office to more than double its former size. The floor space was secured by the removal of a room to another part of the plant. The additional room will be used as a public office and the present quarters as a private office. The firm has been crowded for office room for some time.

PREFER TO KEEP ICE FOR APPLETON PATRONS

Lawrence Lutz of Lutz Ice Co. has turned down two offers from large cities for his entire stock of ice. The local firm was about the only company in this part of the state that secured a significant supply of ice last winter and nearly all the ice companies in the larger cities are already running short. The local company has been supplying Kaukauna with ice for several weeks.

NOTICE!

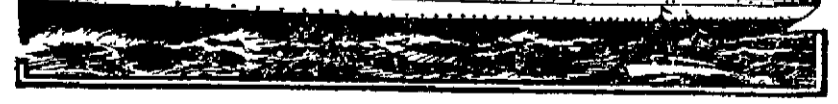

(Information to the Public in general)

Whereas we have been continuously probed with questions concerning the controversy between the carpenters and Association contractors, we wish to inform the public that the scale of wages of building crafts for this year already settled is as follows: Plumbers, $1.00 per hour. Tanners, 75c per hour. Painters, 75c per hour. Shop Carpenters, 60c to 75c per hour. Masons settled as far as wages are concerned, $1.00 per hour. Now is 80c per hour too much for outside carpenters who furnish their own tools and considering lost time throughout the year?

If you want carpenter work done, Telephone 1551 or 2051. All our carpenters are covered by compensation insurance. We will supply you with competent carpenters at 85c per hour.

LOCAL REALTORS GOING TO CHICAGO

Badger Delegation to National Convention Next Week Will Be Large.

Most members of Appleton Real Estate board expect to spend next week in Chicago attending the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The gathering will be in session from Monday to Friday.

About 375 reservations have been received from members of the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Brokers by the state arrangements committee, according to Daniel P. Steinberg, state president. The realtors will gather in Milwaukee and go to Chicago on special electric trains. They will be quartered on the fifth floor of Morrison hotel, which has been reserved exclusively for the Badger delegation. More than 400 Badgers are expected to visit the Windy City.

Elaborate entertainment arrangements have been made. Mr. Steinberg has received invitations to two special dinners one for state association presidents and one for presidents and secretaries of local boards. The Appleton realtor is secretary of the Appleton board as well as state president, so he plans to attend both. A dance will be given at Municipal park. The program includes some of the nation's best speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wennemann were guests this week of Mrs. Wennemann parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Randerson at Freedom.

Poor Gas Ought to Show the Same Sign
"Under construction" is right. No truer word could describe the thrown-together make-up of common brand motor fuel that is built up from dreggy refuse, instead of being cleanly refined from the NATURAL gasoline range of rich petroleum.
But even that wouldn't be so bad if it had the grace and honesty to declare its character, price itself accordingly and add the warning to "Use at your own risk."
Expect nothing of the kind. What does it care for loggy running, the continual battering of your motor by its misfiring, or the havoc played with your lubricating oil by its constant drip of kerosene?
Read its sign aright. The paltry saving of a few cents a gallon is simply a "Detour" message to the motor-wise. You have paid too much for your car to risk its life on anything but genuine, quick-firing, straight run REAL gasoline.

JAPAN COULD WHIP U. S. IN NAVAL WAR, NAVY EXPERT SAYS

Japan Is Building Up Most Formidable Navy in the World, Book Declares.

By Milton Brommer.
Special to Post-Crescent.
London—If there is ever to be a war between Japan and the United States, the danger period is somewhere between now and 1923, because within this period Japan would have the best chance for a naval victory in the Pacific.

This statement is made in "Sea-Power in the Pacific," a book by Hector C. Bywater, just issued here by Constable & Co., which has attracted immense attention in military, naval and diplomatic circles.

The author is an associate of the British Institute of Naval Architects and a recognized authority on naval and engineering problems.

He is frankly amazed by the war in which the United States government has failed to prepare her forces against a potential foe in the Pacific. He points out:

First, that while we have gone in for great battleships, we have delayed until now the creation of a fleet of battle cruisers. Result is it will be 1923 before we have some of these heavy-gunned, swift-moving instruments of war. Japan already has them.

Second, while building destroyers and submarines, we have neglected the light cruisers, whose value as eyes and ears for the navy was so abundantly displayed in the big naval battles of the recent war.

Third, though we have owned Hawaii for many years, it is only recently that we have begun at Pearl Harbor the kind of fortifications, drydocks and fuel storage places that a great Pacific fleet needs.

Fourth, though Guam is the key to our defense of the Philippines, we have not even begun to make it a place of value to our army and navy.

Fifth, while building big ships, we have neglected to provide adequate and sufficient naval bases for them on our Pacific coast.

While we have thus neglected the very A, B, C's of the business, says Bywater, the Japs have made their island empire practically impregnable to attack and have built a fleet not only with an eye to defense, but also to offense in the Pacific.

In the event of a war within two years, he thinks the Japs can take Guam and the Philippines in two weeks. He quotes an unnamed distinguished American naval officer who wrote him:

The Philippines are there for Japan whenever she likes to take them, and nothing can prevent her from seizing them when she feels inclined to do so. As at present circumstances we could do nothing whatever to protect them in time of war."

Bywater points out the old familiar grounds for the war-makers: the land legislation of California, the insistence by America that the open door policy be followed in China, and finally the fear of the ruling classes that unless the masses are distracted by the war-cry of patriotism there may be serious industrial troubles at home.

Now, in event of war, what? Bywater renders full tribute to the efficiency of the war machines we build and to the keenness of our officers.

But he also points out the increasing difficulty we are having in filling the complements of our ships and getting our boys to hear the call of the blue water.

On the other hand, he says, the Jap officers are equally as keen and that the country never has any trouble getting all the seamen it wants.

He assumes that if there were a war, not only would our Pacific coast be immune from a serious attack, but that our Panama canal, upon which so much would depend, would also be safe, thanks to the vigilance of our armed forces.

But the navy would be faced with a task of extraordinary difficulty. It would either have to carry on a defensive war, which would be tantamount to a Jap victory, entailing the loss of our island possessions in the Pacific; or an offensive war, in which a decisive success would be practically impossible to achieve.

The main point he stresses is: For less than the cost of two modern battleships such a chain of naval bases

CRIME WAVE, DUE TO WAR, COSTS 100 MILLIONS A YEAR

Lack of Regard for Human Life and Rights Is Aftermath of Great Conflict.

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
New York—William B. Joyce, president of the National Surety Co., adds a $100,000,000, hitherto unmentioned item to America's war cost.

This huge sum is the estimated cost of the 1920 crime wave, which Joyce says is traceable to the effect of the war on humanity. It is a constantly growing figure, he points out, for if the present ratio is maintained, crime losses for 1921 will be equally as large.

More serious than money, he says, is the unprecedented addition to the ranks of America's criminals.

Joyce based his $100,000,000 estimate upon the embezzlement and burglary claims paid for 7520 by 30 of the country's leading safety and burglary insurance companies.

These companies paid claims aggregating $15,313,672, while in 1913, before the outbreak of the war, claims for only $3,328,789 were paid. But Joyce says that approximately 90 per cent of burglary and embezzlement losses are not insured, and that in many instances where full claims were paid, the insurance was far too small to cover the actual losses.

Every war is followed by widespread disrespect of law, Joyce says. Cynical thoughts of the cheapness of human life, indifference to human suffering and disregard of others' rights are aftermaths of armed conflict.

Agitators find a more ready field for the spread of their doctrines. This has a two-fold effect: more people actually come to believe principles of discontent and many, though not actually believing, find fancied justification in these doctrines for acts of lawlessness involving property.

Many Discontented.
The spread of discontent during and after the World War was greatly augmented by the oft-repeated reports of enormous profits piled up during the war. Men ask why these "war profiteers" should have in luxury while they are hard pressed for enough to live on?

Two other factors in the discontent are the belief in the unequal distribution of wealth, caused by the reports of enormous flotations of investment securities during and after the war; and the vulgar display of valuables in public places.

The former leads many to the belief that they are not getting their share of the tremendous wealth of the country. The latter causes resentment among the unfortunate, and is also a bait that tempts to robbery and makes it easy.

The disrespect for law has been aided by the prohibition law, Joyce believes. Many who would not think of stealing a man's money or jewelry makes no bones about taking liquor. This naturally leads to thefts of other things as well.

Extravagant living standards cannot today be maintained in many cases. This is a temptation to preserve them by crime.

could be thrown across the Pacific as would give our fleet entire command of the situation and enable it to wage a war both of offense and defense with all our resources.

Be sure to get real Resinol

The box is blue, with the opal jar inside. Your drug-gist sells it. Imitations are not "just as good" as they are often crudely made, have little healing power and may even be dangerous to use. Resinol is never sold in bulk.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

Unemployment in cities, due to the war influx, is another tremendous factor, Joyce finds.

Employers' lax methods are much to blame. Billions of dollars in negotiable securities have been handled by inexperienced and untried clerks.

Common sense methods by employers and more severe penalties for property crimes, are advanced by Joyce as remedial measures. He would make life imprisonment the penalty for burglaries and embezzlement.

The wrong attitude, engendered by the war, must be changed, he says. A long step in this direction can be made by finding jobs for the unemployed, and thus directing their thoughts into wholesome channels.

FRANCE IS ANGRY OVER TRIAL OF WAR CRIMINALS

By United Press Leased Wire
Paris.—The government has ordered recall of the French legal mission at Leipzig as a protest against hypocrisy of the German trials of war building in that city, it was announced Friday.

This followed acquittal of General Stenger, accused of ordering war prisoners executed.

It was added that France will refuse to recognize any more of the trials which are regarded as farcical.

Howard Russell of Oshkosh, was here on business Friday.

UNTERMAYER SPENDS LIFE TO PUT STOP TO BUILDING GRAFT

New York Lawyer Rests in Europe Before Resuming Crusade in New York.

By E. M. Thierry.
New York—"I'll land a thousand more building grafters in jail as soon as I return from Europe."

That's the promise of Samuel Untermeyer, special counsel for the Lockwood investigating committee, who has taken "time out" for a short vacation overseas.

Untermeyer is devoting his life, mainly, to two things—cleaning up the national building graft, and growing beautiful flowers. He always wears a home-grown orchid in his buttonhole.

The graft pot he has left boiling in New York has already put 46 building grafters behind the bars. And any others who venture out of hiding or temporary good behavior, in the delusion that Untermeyer is loafing on the job, while vacationing, will draw his ire via cable, he says.

He is the sort of man who takes his work with him wherever he goes. In Europe, followed by a half dozen secretaries, armed with documents and cable blanks, he plans to freshen himself physically for the big fight which has only begun.

Untermeyer's chief work has been in New York and Buffalo, but he has revealed the inner workings of a ring that is national—strangling building and imposing the penalty of high rents.

He has made many enemies—but he seems to thrive on them. Figuratively, he sits at Graystone, his home on the road to Sing Sing, and watches the procession going to jail.

Two powerful forces are now lined up with the Nemesis of building grafters. Untermeyer has the cooperation of Attorney General Daugherty and has succeeded in getting the American Federation of Labor to condemn the offending members of the Building Trades council.

That he has the support of union labor is demonstrated by the fact that he has been selected as arbitrator for the building trades in Westchester, Erie and Rochester counties.

"Yes, it's an expensive crusade," says Untermeyer, "but it won't take long—maybe a year."

That's another thing he isn't prone to talk about—the fact that he has paid out thousands of dollars from his own pocket in prosecution of the "ring." He refuses to take a penny compensation. He has given up his own legal work—and he is among the half dozen highest paid lawyers in New York—to cure the building sore.

His inquiry, thus far, has brought nearly 500 indictments against individuals and firms, sent Robert F. Brindell, building trade "czar," to Sing Sing, jailed many more, collected $187,500 in fines, and smashed a dozen building material combines. And all this didn't "just happen." He studied his field for 15 years before he struck—and then he got results.

Nearly 500 witnesses have been examined in New York and Buffalo and 10,000 pages of testimony have been taken. Governors of states all over the country and prosecuting attorneys have asked for transcripts of testimony. Everywhere Untermeyer is regarded as the one man who can dig out the rotten core of building ills and successfully solve the housing problem.

The federal government recently took action and indictments, national in scope, are expected. A congressional appropriation of a quarter million dollars will probably be required for the country-wide wholesale cleanup, directed at 20 national combines capitalized at $2,000,000,000.

And this man "treats 'em rough"—what does he look like?

LEADERS SETTING LIVELY PACE IN MAJOR CIRCUITS

Pirates and Indians Manage to Keep Lead But Are Hard Pressed.

June was a lively month for the lively ball. The resident pull crowded off many a wall. Both distance and altitude records have been smashed. As to the teams, Pittsburgh of the National League and Cleveland of the American started the month in first places and were there at the finish. Both are playing several points below the speed they finished with in May. But it's enough to keep them at the head of the pack. The Pirates' decline was due to the slowing up of pitchers. The Indians slight drop in per centage was a direct result of Steve O'Neill being out of the game. With O'Neill behind the bat the Speakeaters are about 30 points stronger than without him. The Giants took the lead from the Pirates on June 4 and 5, then dropped back. McGraw is experimenting with his infield. Brooklyn started the month in third place and finished in fifth. Robbie's bats are cracking up. The Braves are playing great ball for Fred Mitchell. The Mitchmen jumped from fourth to third place and are threatening the leaders with their gilded pitching. St. Louis Cards moved up from fifth to fourth place. Branch Rickey is getting good pitching. They had one winning record in 10 in a row. The Cubs batted their per centage, but came to sixth place. There isn't enough speed in the Cub machine. Cincinnati got one peg out of the cellar. The Reds played some good ball. Philadelphia is nose-diving deeper yet. In the American League, New York failed to overtake Cleveland. The Yanks are in-and-outers. Boston has good pitchers and great fielding. Detroit skidded. Cobb's pitchers and infield cracked. Injury to infielders and a slipping pitching staff kept the St. Louis Browns from getting any place. Chicago has been up and down. Gleason can't expect Faber and Kerr to patch every other day. Connie Mack's kids did wonders with the bat, but they're still in the subway.

Sport Views And News

Bruce Noel, pitching star in the old Wisconsin-Illinois league and until recently manager of the Menasha team in the Fox River Valley league is about through with baseball. Bruce was released by the Menasha club after last Sunday's game when he attempted to pitch against the Appleton team, passed four men and lost the game before calling on a relief hurler. Noel was in bad with Appleton fans because he jumped the Brandt team last year. Bruce entered the W-I league as a pitcher when about 18 years old and made good from the start. He had a world of stuff on the ball and was a pretty good fielder. It is hardly probable that he will get back in the game again.

They are all trying to get a crack at Carpenter these days. Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, has come forth with a challenge to the Brandt team and it is said that Fulton, Gibson and some of the other big fellows are anxious to swap punches with Descamps fighter. The foreigner is a good drawing card and his appearance against any of these battlers would be a good "gate-getter."

Red Faber continues to shine as a pitching ace. The veteran, who is the only hurler on the White Sox staff to throw any kind of ball this season, marked up his sixteenth win at the expense of the Cobblers. Tygers by the score of 2 to 0. He pitched a heavy hitting Detroiters four lone-some hits. The Chicago Ace is getting better as the season grows older and he bids fair to have the most successful season of his career.

Jack Egan is in bad again with the Milwaukee fans. The Brewers have hit the skids of late and some of the critics blame the manager claiming that his handling of pitchers has been of a hush league variety. The other day Egan went on the coaching lines while the team was in action at home and the spectators gave him the roughest in good shape. Egan has worked wonders with his bunch of castoffs and they up in the first division but the knockers are getting busy at every opportunity and making life miserable for the Milwaukee manager.

About eight weeks and the thud of the pigskin will be heard on the gridiron. Many of the college teams swing into action early in September and the pro elevens are already making plans for a long season. Football should boom this fall and every indication points to the gridiron game being more popular than ever before.

JOHNSON IS ALL SET TO LEAVE LEAVENWORTH

Leavenworth, Kan.—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, prepared Friday for freedom. Johnson is scheduled to be released Saturday from the federal penitentiary where he has been imprisoned since last September for a violation of the Mann act. His white wife is to pay a $1,000 fine which was given him in connection with his sentence and this with time off for good behavior is responsible for the early release.

GEORGES ADMITS HE MADE MISTAKE IN DEMPSEY FIGHT

Frenchman Says He Found Dempsey Much Faster Than He Had Been Rated.

By United Press. Leased Wire. New York — Georges Carpentier has been accused by the experts of using poor judgment in his fight with Jack Dempsey. Instead of attempting to out-punch the world's champion it was generally supposed that the fier Frenchman would use his feet to keep away from Dempsey. Carpentier admits that he did make a mistake but that he could not help it. "I thought I was strong enough to hold him in the clinches. Once in the first round I did get an uppercut over in a clinch but that ended it," the Frenchman said Friday. Georges explained that he had trained for close fighting with Joe Jeannette and Paul Journee. "They are great big fellows and I thought they were about as strong as I had," he said. "I had no trouble in holding their arms in the clinches but Dempsey just knocked my arms down and hit me at will." Carpentier further explains that he didn't keep away from the champion because he couldn't. "In the third round, I changed my tactics and tried to outspeed the champion but I could not do it. He is much faster than we had thought. He kept on me all the time. Twice in the third round I danced away from him but the third time he caught me against the ropes and rocked me with one of his great left hand punches," he said. Descamps and Gus Wilson were supposed to have directed his fight from the corner. Carpentier denies this with the emphatic statement—"I always fight my own fight."

PITCHERS' BATTLE EXPECTED SUNDAY

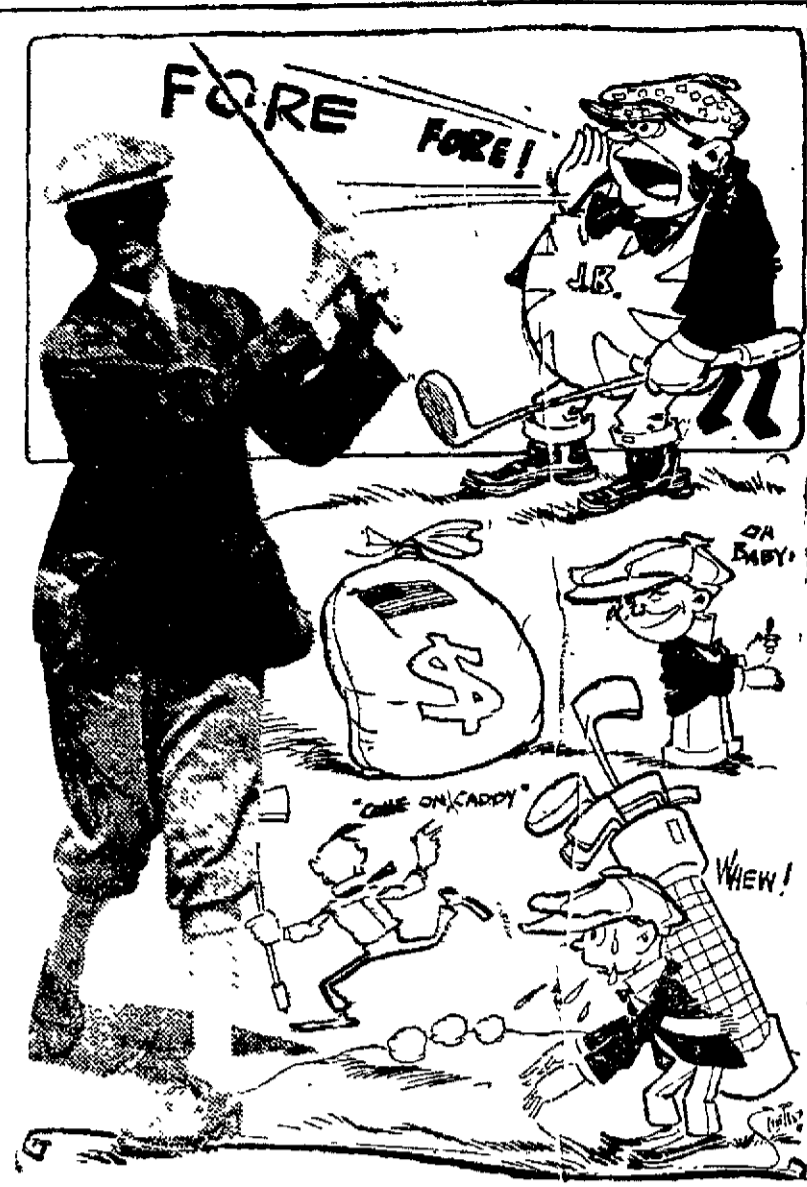

Schultz and Stevenson Hook Up in Second Diamond Battle of Season.

Oshkosh and Appleton hook up in one of the crucial games of the season at Oshkosh next Sunday afternoon. The teams are close together in the valley league pennant race and a win for the Brandts will put them in first place. Oshkosh realizes the danger of the invasion and is fortifying itself for the battle. Schultz will work on the hill for Appleton, as usual, and Stevenson will be for the Sawdust city. It should be a pitchers' battle with odds about even. Each team has won one game from the other so far this season. New London and Kimberly clash at Kimberly in what should be a real game. Manager Sylvester is trying hard to present a formidable front to the Edison and is hopeful of stopping the northerners. Kaukauna and Menasha play at Menasha.

British Invader Is Golfing Dynamo

George Duncan, English professional, thinks he has a good chance to cop America's National Open golf title this fall. He won the English National Open a year ago at Deal. But the peppery Jock Hutchison took his measure in the recent matches at St. Andrews. Hutchison is a fast golfer, but Duncan is faster. The Briton races around the links so fast his caddies can't keep up. He doesn't waste any time in making his shots.

Like Ball Player
His idea of driving the ball is the same as that of the ball player who hits the first ball pitched. Ted Ray, present holder of the American National Open title, plans to return to defend his honors. In Duncan he'll face a worthy rival. He toured this country in 1911, playing over 70 matches on this side. Together with Abe Mitchell, England's long distance driver, Duncan will tour again. They have scheduled 55 exhibition matches, most of which will be played in the east and middle west. If it is possible to arrange a flying trip to the Pacific Coast, the English invaders will take it. Good Team Duncan and Mitchell as a team are rated higher than the Ray-Vardon combination which invaded America last summer. Ray and Vardon traveled over 40,000 miles and played 26,000 holes of golf while here. Everywhere they went they were big drawing cards. They reaped a harvest of nearly $50,000 on the American links. American golf fans will see more speed when Duncan sails around the course than they've ever watched. And after American caddies see him in action he'll have his troubles in hiring them.

Why Game Is Faster

Tris Speaker isn't laying all the blame for the batting spree on the liveliness of the ball. "Batters have more confidence now than they once had," says Tris. "With the freak deliveries gone, batters have taken a new lease on life. They know that all they need will be speed and curves. It is like taking a handicap off any athlete. He makes a leap forward."

REMEMBER THE GOOD
Detroit is one of the most loyal baseball towns in the majors. The fans don't forget the good things a player has done and they overlook the wrong. When Hughie Jennings took the Giants to Detroit for an exhibition game, the Tiger fans—the same fans who had been faithful to him during the years he led the Bengals—declared it a "Jennings Day" and gave him the warmest of welcomes. Tiger fans will never forget those three pennant fights he made and won.

QUICK BARGAIN
Harry Sinclair, owner of the famous Rancocas Stables, paid $25,000 for a horse in less time than it takes a woman to buy a box of wire hairpins. Sam Hildreth, his trainer, appeared at Belmont Park and sought Jim Fitzsimmons, trainer of the Quincy Stables. "I came to look at Knobbie," said Hildreth. "I think he's a good colt. How much do you want for him?" "Twenty-five thousand dollars," said Fitz.

MAY BE PSYCHOLOGY

Pitchers occasionally shift their jinx around from one club to another. Take Sam Jones of the Boston Red Sox. Jones used to beat the White Sox by simply "throwing his glove" at them. This year the Sox have beaten him twice. Dutch Leonard of the Tigers is another hurler who has lost his charm. Last year Leonard beat Cleveland three out of four games. "This year he is 'pickin' on' the Speakeaters. This pitcher's jinx is an unaccountable thing in baseball. Maybe it's psychology."

RICKARD HASN'T FIGURED HIS PROFIT ON BIG BOUT

By United Press. Leased Wire. New York.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, hasn't figured how much he made on the "battle of the century." He gave a list Friday of what the preliminaries cost him. Gene Tunney and Billy Miske got $2,000 each for the semi-final. Frankie Burns drew $1,800 and Jack Renault $1,500. Joe Matrangola, Babe Herman, Soldier Jones, Dick Griffin, Mickey Delmont, Johnny Curtin and Packey O'Gatty drew $750. Benny Coster got $500. Harry Ertel, referee of the main bout, got $1,000. Jim Savage, alternate referee, got $75. Phil Erhart, Danny Sullivan, Harry McCoy and Jimmy DeForest, referees of the preliminaries, received $50 each.

C. L. MARSTON WINS FIRST GOLF TROPHY

Handicap Tournament for President's Cup Opens at Riverview on Saturday.

One of the peppery golf contests of the summer season at the Riverview Country club will be the handicap tournament for the president's cup, which is to open Saturday. Some of the best golfers of the club intend to try for the handsome cup presented by S. H. Clinedinst, Menasha. Heat or no heat, they intend to put across a real match. All members will have opportunity to enter in the opening round. It will be a match play handicap and one round must be played each of the following weeks. The conditions under which the match will be staged insure a large number of contestants. The winner will hold the trophy for one year, and if lucky enough to come out on top in the battle for three successive years may call it his own.

C. L. Marston walked off with a handsome cup engraved with his name when he outplayed all his competitors in the handicap tournament with which the season formally opened. The closing match was played last Saturday. Kenneth Dickenson and Harry Price, Neenah, were close on Marston's heels. Ladies of the club who have been warming up in a series of informal matches will step into the foreground next Tuesday when the ladies' handicap championship qualifying round medal play will open. Players with the lowest four scores will qualify. These matches will be played for the best net medal scores for nine holes. The semi-finals are to be played on or before July 16. The best club swingers of the fair sex will compete in the finals, medal play, on or before July 23. A cup will be awarded the winner, to be held for one year. The trophy becomes the property of the owner if won for three successive years.

Riverview club will be a host to a group of players from Sheboygan Country club, Sheboygan, in a friendly match here July 23. C. W. Spickardman, Neenah, will choose and captain the Appleton team.

WITH THE AMATEURS

The West End Merchants baseball team will play the Shiocton city team at Shiocton next Sunday. The Merchants expect to use Heller on the mound with Kaufman on the receiving end. The team has been playing nearly every week and is in excellent condition. It gave the New London city team a hard battle on the New London grounds last Sunday.

The Wisconsin Telephone Co. team, strengthened this week by two new players from the construction crew, is looking for a game for next Sunday. The team is one of the strongest in the city and wants games with teams which can give it real opposition.

No game has been scheduled by the Chicago and Northwestern team for next Sunday. It was announced at the freight depot. The team is negotiating for a game for a week from Sunday.

The barbers and the Post-Crescent team will meet in their second game at Brandt park Sunday morning. The barbers lost the first game to the scribes but want a chance to get even. Fredericka for the barbers and Starnard for the scribes will probably do the hurling.

ETERNAL FIGHT TO MAKE WASHINGTON A BEAUTIFUL CITY

Politics Plays Big Part in Providing Money for National Capital.

BY WILLIAM H. TAFT. Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Co. Philadelphia.—The beauty of the city of Washington, in which every American takes pride, is due primarily to Washington, Jefferson and the French engineer, L'Enfant. Washington selected the site, realized the necessity for a comprehensive plan for the capital of a nation whose growth to greatness he foresaw, and chose L'Enfant to make the great design. Jefferson, Washington's secretary of state, among his many-sided tastes and talents, had that of the architect, which he gratified in his European sojourns as American representative abroad. At the suggestion of Washington, he was able to aid L'Enfant in his task not only with his advice, but by lending him the detailed plans of all the great European cities which he had been at pains to procure during his previous years abroad. L'Enfant was an engineer of the French army, with all the sensitiveness and reasonableness of a highly artistic temperament, making him exceedingly difficult, so that after his great design was completed he quarreled with the district commissioners and their relations were severed.

For more than three-quarters of a century after its founding the beauty of Washington had to be taken on faith, and the faith was much strained in the early days of the republic and down through the trying times of the Civil war. Its streets were either mud-holes or the source of blinding and unhealthy dust, and the public buildings, many of them worthy and commanding, by contrast brought out the miserable and eye-offending character of the houses in the midst of which they stood. Gradually, however, the city improved. Its streets were paved, trees were planted everywhere and grew, and the wonderful wisdom and beauty of the L'Enfant design became self-evident. It has been marred in only a few respects. The site of the treasury building, which blocks the direct sweep of Pennsylvania-ave with its vista from the capitol to the White House, was due to the obstinate Philadelphia spirit of Andrew Jackson. The placing of the congressional library is not fortunate or helpful to the design. But, on the whole, we ought to be profoundly grateful that in our national vicissitudes the plan suffered so little. The inconceivable foolishness of the act of congress by which the half of the district to the southern side of the Potomac, including the beautiful Potomac Palisades was retroceded to the state of Virginia in the forties and in the days of a little United States is a circumstance indicating what might have happened had there been any considerable effort to deal with Washington's improvement in those days.

The present beauty of our capitol and the conformity maintained to the original design have been largely due to the influence exerted by Senator McMillan of Michigan, who was at the head of the district committee of the senate and who gave much effort, time and money to a revival of interest in the L'Enfant design. Through his agency, a commission of artists, engineers and architects was employed by his committee to make a report upon the future improvements of Washington, and the result was a full approval of the L'Enfant plan with amplifications. The costliness of carrying out its recommendations and the fact that it was a retrograde enterprise created an antagonism to it among the leaders of the lower house that at times has delayed progress or threatened to block it. But the creation of the special commission led ultimately to the creation of a national commission of permanent tenure, whose advisory and supervisory duties have been of inestimable benefit not only in the supremely important matter of avoiding incurable blunders, but also in affirmative suggestions and constructive progress. Charles Moore, who was Senator McMillan's secretary and active in the work of the senator from the beginning, has continued the beneficent influence and purpose of that friend of Washington in all that had been done since Mr. McMillan's death.

Administrations differ in their attitude toward improvement and beautification of Washington. The late administration took no helpful interest in it and did a number of things that showed little or no heed to the L'Enfant plan or the future of what easily may be the most beautiful city of the world. There was one full term when the exigencies of war did not interfere. Yet nothing was done but to cast into the scrap heap a number of beautiful designs for greatly needed new governmental buildings secured with much expense by the previous administration, after an active competition among the ablest architects of the country, and to stop appropriations for construction, general authority for which had been granted by congress. The result was that when the war came on buildings were erected here, there and everywhere under the then wide authority of the executive, which do not make for beauty or permanent utility, and which it will take many years to get rid of. Every American who enters Washington through the portals of the great railway station, itself a triumph of monumental art, and who, glancing across the broad plaza and appropriate memorial of Columbus, faces the familiar but ever-impressive dome of his country's capitol, personifying in his heart the national power, has a sense of proud personal ownership in the scene and is rejoiced at its dignity and beauty. The citizens of the United States are very proud of Washington. They are very willing that congress shall spend as much money as is needed to make it the most beautiful capital in the world. On the other hand, this feeling is of no affirmative political weight or value in prompting appropriations or executive action to gratify it. Appropriations for aesthetic Washington do not help political campaigns in the districts or states, while keeping down the total of appropriations is important from a political standpoint. For these reasons friends of Washington beautiful must bide their time until pressure for economy is not imperative and congress feels liberal; but they must not fall in the interval to keep measures for advance continually before congress and its appropriation committees.

One of the present crying needs is the purchase of large tracts of land for parks, some of it historical interest, and the periphery of the district. They can be bought now at very reasonable cost and can be left for improvement and adaption to a park system in the future. It is gratifying to note in the Washington news that the permanent residents of the capital have completed a very effective unofficial organization, with Miss Mabel T. Boardman, late district commissioner, as its head, to promote and direct public opinion on this subject. Miss Boardman has appointed three or four committees of the ablest and most experienced Washingtonians to give special attention and report on the various projects that commend themselves, to keep in touch with the proper committees in congress and to press for intelligent action when the time seems ripe. Art is long and time is fleeting; but the progress of the capital of the greatest nation cannot be stayed.

Watching The Scoreboard

Thursday's hero—Ray Schmidt. The young Brooklyn first baseman hit a homer in the tenth inning that beat the Giants, 7 to 6. The Cardinals made thirteen hits good for twelve runs in the seventh and eighth innings and beat the Phils, 15 to 2. Moore's wildness gave the Indians three runs but he was effective in the pinches and the Athletics won, 5 to 3. The Braves beat the Reds, 8 to 2, in a very important game. This is sarcasm. The Tigers took a pair from the White Sox, 13 to 8, and 9 to 6.

TWO FACTORY LEAGUE GAMES AT BRANDT PARK

Combined Locks, the leaders in the Industrial league, will play Saturday afternoon against Appleton Woolen Mills. The game will come off at 2 o'clock at Brandt park. The Valley Iron works and the Northern Boiler works will meet at 3:30 at Brandt park directly after the first game. Kimberly-Clark will play the Coated Paper Co. at Kimberly grounds and Interlake will play on its own grounds against the Fox River team.

TENDER CARE GIVEN YANK GRAVES OVERSEAS

Graves Registration Committee in France Confronted by Huge Task.

By Milton Bronner.
(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Paris.—With reverence and respect, the bodies of American soldiers who fell fighting in France, are being cared for overseas, under the direction of the American Graves Registration service.

The whole job of disinterring and re-burying is being done by ex-service men, with American officers in charge.

A Tremendous Job.
Few Americans realize the tremendous job the Graves Registration committee has been doing over here. In round numbers, about 75,000 Yankee soldiers lost their lives in Belgium and France. Their next of kin had the option of leaving the remains in France or having them returned to America for burial in the home graveyard.

When the work began, it was estimated that 60 per cent of the bodies would be shipped home as per request and the remaining 40 per cent would be left here. However, since that time sentiment has changed, many parents and wives feeling they would prefer to have their dear ones sleep in the soil they so heroically defended.

The result is that it is now estimated about 50 per cent of the dead will be buried over here.

To date 23,000 bodies have been shipped back to America, going at the rate of 6,000 per month. It is expected that all bodies requested will be shipped back by late fall. The remainder will have been buried in the official soldier graveyards in France by the end of next winter.

Four Yankee Graveyards.
There are to be four graveyards which will be kept very much like our national cemetery at Arlington Heights, across the river from Washington.

The American national graveyards in France will be at Suresnes, which is near Paris, at Romagne, which is in the Argonne at Belleau Wood and at Bony on the Aisne. The latter will be known as Flanders Field. There will be a simple headstone for each sol-

The cemeteries are now absolutely closed to tourists. At the present time, with burials going on, it is not felt proper to allow strangers to come into the cemeteries to satisfy a morbid curiosity to sight see. But all relatives of American soldiers buried in these cemeteries are allowed to visit them

COAL SOON WILL BE REPLACED BY OIL

London.—Within a few years coal will be a back number as fuel. Fast ocean steamships, railway trains, industrial plants, will all burn—oil!

That's what progressive industrialists and scientists are saving here.
They have been talking oil for years.
But the British coal miners' strike which shut down mines in the United Kingdom for more than two months brought the matter to a head.

In the last few weeks of the coal strike the use of fuel oil increased enormously. The result has been a number of inquiries from railways, steamship lines and industrial plants, not only in regard to oil itself but burners in which to use it.

There is little difference in price between coal and oil. But oil is more economical because much labor is saved in stoking.

There is no prospect of the oil supply running out very soon. There's plenty of it on the market and new fields continually are being opened.

Colombia, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Venezuela, the United States and northwestern Canada furnish abundant oil fields.

There is plenty of oil in Mesopotamia, but the wells were damaged in the war and have not yet been put back on a productive basis.

GOVERNOR'S AIDE IS HIS "DOUBLE"

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Atlanta, Ga.—When you shake hands with Governor Thomas W.
Hardwick of Georgia—maybe you don't.

For you are just as likely to be gripping the hand of D. B. Blalock, Hardwick's secretary. Who can tell?
Hardly anybody, it seems. Hardwick looks as much like Blalock as he does himself—and the same goes for Blalock and Hardwick.

When the present governor was a senator Blalock's friends predicted he had a political future before him—because he resembled Hardwick so closely.

Then Hardwick became governor, and he engaged his "twin" as secretary.

"Pretty handy," says the governor.
And "handy" is right!

When respect paying callers become too numerous and Hardwick gets a touch of hand-shaker's cramp
—what is more simple than to lend Secretary Blalock a suit of governmental clothes and stand him up with outstretched mit, before the unusually pecking back home folks?

Also, when banquet invitations become too numerous and close together,
Blalock could sit in nicely in the governor's seat.

SEND PRINTS OF FINGERS BY PHONE

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Paris.—Prof. Benin, Paris scientist, has perfected a device by which fingerprints and photographs of criminals can be transmitted long distances by telephone.

The Paris police were skeptical when the device was called to their attention. But a demonstration held in the office of a Paris daily newspaper convinced them that the apparatus really will work.

The device can be attached to any telephone. It takes about eight minutes to transmit prints and 10 minutes to transmit photographs.

Municipal Police Director Guichard
of Paris says the new device will mean tough sledding for European criminals.

"It means," he says, "that if an international swindler or murderer is captured at Warsaw or Berlin, his prints and photographs can be compared within a few minutes with those on file in the police archives of Paris or in Scotland Yard, London.

"It means, too, that innocent persons being held on suspicion can be released more quickly, since they will not have to languish in jail while waiting for photographs and prints to arrive by mail."

Professor Benin, inventor of the device, says that he thinks he will soon be able to send photographs to America.

If we can transmit them by telephone," he says, "there is no reason why we cannot send them by telegraph or even by wireless."

The machine looks something like a camera. How does it work? If you're curious ask Professor Benin.
But he won't tell you.

At Last! Science Finds A Microbe That Kills Mosquitoes

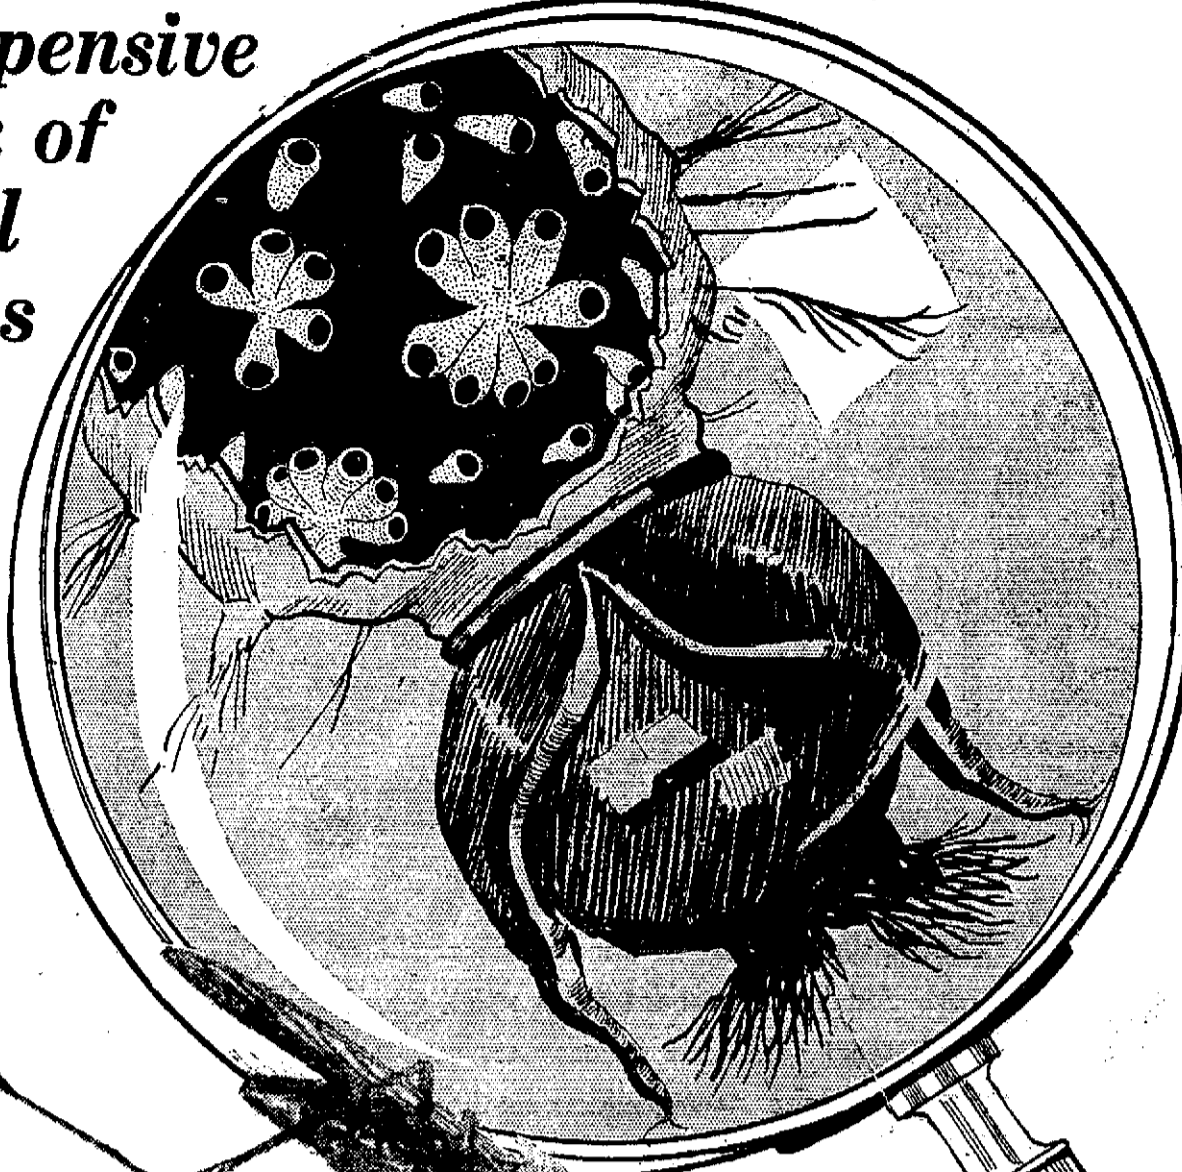

Enlarged Mosquito "Wriggler" Showing It Hungrily Feeding Upon Matter Filled with the Enemy Microbes.

A Much Greater Enlargement of the Head of the Mosquito "Wriggler," Showing It Hungrily Feeding Upon Matter Filled with the Enemy Microbes.

Instead of the Long, Expensive and Difficult Work of Draining and Oil Spraying Marshes and Ponds, Civilization May Be Rid of This Dangerous Pest by Infecting Its Breeding Places with Enemy Germs

"Great fleas have little fleas on their backs to bite 'em, And little fleas have lesser fleas, and so ad infinitum."—DEAN SWIFT.

The Same "Wriggler" After a Few Hours. The Germs Multiply Rapidly. Each Growing Into Eight Others as Shown Above, and Then Subdividing and All the Time Absorbing the Nourishment the "Wriggler" Needs for Itself. At the Left, in Its Characteristic Biting Attitude, Is the Mosquito That Carries the Malaria Germ.

By Dr. W. H. Ballou.

A MICROBE whose sole purpose in life seems to be to kill mosquitoes has just been discovered by Professor R. Kudo, of the Zoological Laboratory of Illinois. So thoroughly efficient is it in destroying the stinging pests which for ages have tormented humanity and infected it with malaria, yellow fever and other deadly diseases, that its propagation in huge quantities and distribution wherever mosquitoes breed are now under way.

If the microbe does what it is expected to do not only will countless lives be saved and untold suffering be averted, but the millions of dollars now being spent in draining marshes, drying ponds and spraying crude oil over swamps can be used for something else.

Science ventures the assertion that through it a mosquitoless world may ultimately come to pass. It offers, at the least, a short cut to a wholesale destruction of the mosquito tribes that the enormously more expensive methods have failed to accomplish. That when it wipes out the mosquito it will also wipe out its own food supply and cease itself to be something that mankind cannot help. All a grateful civilization can do in the matter will be to raise a suitable monument in memory of its microscopic and departed benefactor.

Professor Kudo, an extremely distinguished Japanese scientist, was poking about certain Illinois water holes, in his capacity as expert parasitologist, when he ran across thousands of dead young of the mosquito. Now, the mosquito before it becomes full fledged passes through three stages—first, the egg; second, as the "wriggler" or larva; third, as an intermittent form called the pupa. The specimens that fell under Professor Kudo's eyes were all in the second or larval state, and although he did not murmur to himself the classic lines of Dean Swift about greater fleas and lesser fleas, his experience whispered to him their scientific equivalent. In other words, he knew that such a massacre could only be the work of some microbe parasite. He gathered up the remains and took them back to his laboratory.

There he found that the "wrigglers" were all of the species named Culex pipiens. This is the mosquito whose bite infects man with the germs of dengue fever, a malady better known in the States as "intermittent fever," "three-day fever" and "break-bone fever." It is a disease that causes excruciating pains in the joints and is accompanied by a rash resembling that of scarlet fever.

Under the microscope Professor Kudo found what had killed these babies of Culex pipiens. It was a tiny organism of a kind known to science as "microsporidian"—meaning microscopic in size, and that it multiplies by throwing off spores, like certain types of fungi. He found that these microbes made themselves at home only in the fatty parts of the "wriggler." There they proceeded to increase and multiply, feeding not so much upon the cell itself as upon the substances which otherwise would have gone to nourish the larva. During this process the fat cells hypertrophied

King Sapor of Persia Abandoning the Siege of Nisibis Because His Army Was Attacked by Swarms of Mosquitoes. (One of the Many Cases in Ancient History Mentioned by Dr. L. O. Howard, U. S. Government Entomologist, in Which Wars and Battles Were Decided by the Insect Pest.)

—that is, grew abnormally large—crowding against and contracting the other cells of the "wriggler." Eventually, and rapidly, the larva died of starvation, because most of the nourishment it needed went to the infected fat cells, where it was absorbed by the microbes. The general upheaval caused by the abnormal growth of these infected cells helped the starvation along, of course.

Having learned so much the Japanese scientist next set out to find how the microbe, which he christened Theohania magna Kudo, got into the larvae. He went back to the water holes. And there he found out the whole thing—the most important achievement, by the way, of his entire career.

In the infected holes—that is, the pools that contained the microbes—the following occurred: The female mosquito—Mrs. Culex pipiens—came and laid her eggs on the surface of the water. On the third day these hatched into the "wriggler." On about the fourth day the "wriggler" wriggled down to the bottom of the hole and began hungrily to gorge itself on remains of other larvae which had fallen victims to the microbe. With this cannibalistic food it took in the tiny enemies to which they had succumbed.

And before the end of the seventh day, when the larva begins to turn into the pupa, they gave up the ghost and dropped down to add to the infected debris and to poison other still healthy wrigglers coming down to feed upon what was left of them.

Or, as Professor Kudo puts it in his article in the Journal of Morphology of the Wistar Institute, in which he tells of his discoveries:

"Results of examinations of pools showed that when the mosquito larvae were attacked by the parasite all died before completing the larval stage. The bodies sank to the bottom and underwent decay. The unaffected larvae constantly descended and partook of the infected tissue, becoming themselves victims."

The scientist then checked off his field observations by laboratory experiments. He collected the "wrigglers" of Culex pipiens and put them in jars, at the bottom of which was food full of the microbes. Here he discovered that not all the larvae died of the infection. Perhaps one out of a thousand struggled through and became a mosquito.

Invariably this survivor was a female! But she was weak and unable to sting. She did not survive long, and microscopic examination of her showed the persistent microbe in her oviducts, or egg-laying machinery. And the few larvae that hatched from these eggs were infected from birth and soon died.

Professor Kudo then examined female mosquitoes of Culex pipiens caught wild. Let it be said in passing that Mrs. Mosquito is of infinitely more interest to man than Mr. Mosquito. He is only what the extreme suffragists call a biological factor—a harmless boob that doesn't sting and is only of importance as a casual father. It is Mrs. Mosquito who has all the hard work and who, incidentally, does all the damage. It is she who, as Mrs. Culex pipiens, sharpens up her lancets and saw, and after opening up a hole through our skin injects into us the germ of dengue fever. When she is Mrs. Anopheles punctipennis she leaves us with the germs of malaria. Still another lady, Mrs. Stegomyia Calopus, gives us yellow fever. When Kipling wrote that "the female of the species is more deadly than the male" he was right where the mosquito peoples are concerned, at least.

To get back to the subject, Professor Kudo found a certain proportion of these wild female mosquitoes were infected by the microbe, just as were the ones he had bred in the laboratory. They exhibited the same symptoms—few eggs hatched; those that did were infected and the mother soon died.

He therefore came to the conclusion that the infection, so far as the dengue fever-carrying insect was concerned, disarmed her. It killed off most of her young, and those it didn't rendered harmless and destroyed in the second generation.

But how about the mosquito that carried malaria—Mrs. Anopheles punctipennis? Professor Kudo secured "wrigglers" of this species. To his amazement the microbe that killed off Culex had no effect on them. He searched and found at last other pools where the dead of Anopheles lay thick as those of Culex at the start of his researches. He put these under the microscope. In them he found a microbe that was cousin to Theohania magna. It killed them in just the same way. Laboratory experiments yielded precisely the same results.

But the microbe that slew the malaria mosquito would no more kill the dengue fever-carrier than the latter's foe would kill the former!

Clearly, though, both belonged to the same family. He christened the malaria dispenser's enemy Theohania illinoensis—Theohania from Illinois.

In a third, and harmless, species he found another Theohania which worked no harm either upon Culex or Anopheles.

His conclusions were, therefore, that in this microbe mankind has a weapon to destroy the mosquito. But each species of the insect can be killed only by one particular variety of the microbe.

Immediately after Kudo made known the results of his investigations scientists were sent to the haunt of the yellow-fever mosquito to find out what variety of Theohania was fatal to it.

When each microbe is found cultures can be made of it and infected tissues be placed in the breeding places of the particular kind of mosquitoes it kills. The changes the parasite undergoes, as described by Professor Kudo, are most interesting. When the "wriggler" sucks it up in its food it is a microscopic disc with a double "spot," apparently joined but really apart. One of these "spots" is male and the other female. After it enters the larva and makes its way to the fat cell the two "spots" separate, then after a short time approach each other and touch. Immediately after this the appetite of the creature grows keener, it absorbs more food. After a number of curious changes it buds out into eight distinct leaves—like the petals of an eight-leaved flower. Each of these leaves is an individual microbe fastened together at a common centre.

The father-mother microbe has not ceased to exist. It has multiplied itself by eight! By the time this occurs the larva is on its last legs. It dies. The eight petals of the microbe detach themselves. Imbedded by the millions in the flesh of that which they have killed, they sink to the bottom of the pool.

Each of the new microbes now has around it a shell. These shells open like an oyster. Out of each comes exactly such a microbe as the larva sucked up with its food at the first.

Only now there are eight for every one of them, and all ready for business.

It is a curious thing that the disease-bearing mosquitoes should carry within them two such widely different types of microbes as the discoveries by Professor Kudo have proven to be the case. One of these types, as has been shown, destroys the insect, but is entirely harmless to man. The other type, which includes the germs of malaria, yellow and dengue fever, elephantiasis and half a dozen other maladies, does no harm to the insect, but is exceedingly harmful to man.

Indeed, modern science even blames the mosquito for the fall of empires, and to it attributes changes in the course of history. It is a very ancient insect. Herodotus, the Greek historian, says that it plagued the Pharaohs. Dr. L. O. Howard, chief United States Government entomologist and foremost living mosquito expert, has written that on one occasion Sapor King of Persia, was forced to raise the siege of Nisibis and retreat in haste because gigantic swarms of the pest came out of the marshes and stung both soldiers and animals into frenzy. So many of Sapor's beasts of burden ran away under the stinging assaults that captives, women and men, were harnessed to the wagons. At another time, says Dr. Howard, Julian the Apostate was forced to flee with his armies for a similar reason.

The fall of both the ancient Grecian and Roman civilizations are supposed to have been due to the sapping of energy of these two peoples by the malaria with which the mosquitoes infected them.

The disease germs are taken up by the insect, both in its larva stage and by infection in the egg. They live in the insect's salivary glands and digestive tract. The mosquito is equipped with a double set of pumps for sucking blood after its other weapon has penetrated the skin. When they both get under way we are relieved of a large drop of blood and inoculated with a goodly colony of malarial or other germs in less than a minute.

The anti-mosquito campaigns cost America alone millions of dollars annually. These campaigns, while undeniably of some use, are defeated by the winds. Given that all of the mosquitoes, their eggs and young are destroyed on an area ditched and oiled, the next high wind will bring in millions of new insects from other localities not scientifically treated.

Only constant sprinkling of oil has been truly effective, and this is expensive and can be practised only in limited areas. Ditching has failed because the female mosquito, when she finds a ditched area dry, will fly until she finds a waterway elsewhere. Just a handful of water anywhere, or a mud puddle after a rain, is ample for her eggs to breed.

Widespread distribution of the infection in the breeding places will, the scientists think, kill off the main armies of the mosquitoes. The few survivors can be so handled that with patience and perseverance civilization can, in time, be entirely rid of the pest.

BEATS HOLDUP MEN AFTER THEY ROB HIM

Green Bay, Wis.—John Morau, who drives a delivery wagon for the Green Bay ice cream and dairy company was making his rounds early on Thursday when two youthful holdup men stopped him and took his cash box away from him, said to have contained about $50.

As the pair started off with their loot John got to thinking about the injustice of the world the more he thought the madder he got. Finally he turned and gave chase.

Catching up with the robbers he administered a sound thrashing to each, took his money away from them and turned them over to the police.

WOULDN'T YOU BE PROUD

If you could bake such lovely bread as comes from our ovens? You would have a right to be. The bread is nothing less than perfect. But no home could have such facilities as we for turning out such bread. Just try a loaf and you'll see the futility of trying to compete with us in bread baking.

Pettibone's Rummage Sales

come around twice a year. And when they do come—they mean something to you. They mean that you get values such as you never knew before. They mean that Pettibone's surplus stocks will be sold regardless of present market value or what their original cost may have been.

The Policy of the Pettibone Store is never to carry over any seasonable goods. This policy must be lived up to no matter how heavy the loss. And in staple merchandise where odd lots or short lengths have accumulated, where size ranges are incomplete — all these go into the Rummage Sale at prices ONE THIRD, ONE HALF and EVEN ONE TENTH of their actual value today and an even more ridiculous fraction of what you would have paid last year. The heavier the stocks, the bigger the loss. And our stocks are pretty heavy just now.

Past Experience

will tell you what to expect at this sale. For us to say that you are likely to get an average of two dollars worth of merchandise for every dollar you spend is a statement of the average savings you can look for. In this announcement we quote fifty representative items that will be placed on sale Monday morning. Tomorrow's paper will bring two pages more. The values will be extraordinary — the assortments unusually comprehensive.

Usual Rummage Sale Regulations

The rules we have always observed Rummage Week will go in effect Monday morning. That means the doors open promptly at nine o'clock. Rummage purchases will not be returnable or exchangeable. Customers are requested to carry bundles with them as far as practicable to insure against delays in delivery. Every day in the week is a bargain day. New assortments go on sale every morning.

The "Rummage Sale News"

A new feature of the 1921 Rummage Sale will be the publication of an official "Rummage Sale News" in the Post-Crescent every day next week. Watch these columns--there will be "inside tips" on what will happen with the opening of the doors the following morning and also happenings of the day before.
